CURLING.

The annual meeting of the Napanee Curling Club was held in the board room of the Public Library, on Tuesday, Nov. 8th, 1910, at 7 p. m., the president, Mr. Herb. Daly, in the chair. There was a good attendance. The president read his annual report, a copy of which is given below, and the treasurer presented a very satisfactory statement of the Club's finances. It was decided to enter the Ontario Curling Association Competitions and continue the Eastern League and have a Junior Series in the latter. The enlargement of the rink giving an additional sheet of ice and enabling most of the inter rink competitions to be decided in a week should prove an attractive feature this season. The Club's prospects for the year are very great indeed.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

Hon. President—Mr. W. A. Bellhouse.

President—Mr. R. G. H. Travers.

Vice-President—Dr. R. C. Cartwright.

Treasurer—Mr. J. W. Robinson.

Secretary—Mr. U. M. Wilson.

Executive Committee—Messrs. J. S. Ham, J. L. Boyes, R. A. Leonard, M. D., W. C. Smith and C. I. Maybe.

Ice Committee—Messrs. W. C. Smith, C. I. Maybee, H. Daly and J. S. Ham.

Representatives Eastern League—Messrs. J. S. Ham and R. G. H. Travers.

D. CLARK, ODESSA, DIED AS RESULT OF HORSE'S KICK.

Donald Clark, aged about 15 years, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgerton M. Clark, died suddenly early Friday morning, at the home of his parents, near the village of Odessa, as the result of a sad accident.

On Thursday morning he, in company with two younger fellow students, was driving to attend his classes at the Odessa school, when a side strap of the harness broke, and the horse he was driving being a high spirited animal, became fractious and kicked viciously over the dashboard the steel shod hoof of the animal striking Donald with great force in the abdomen.

A neighbor driving a few rods behind the boys, saw at once that a serious accident had occurred, and as soon as possible he drove back with Donald to the latter's home, where in response to a hurried call, Dr. Maybee was soon in attendance upon the injured lad. An examination revealed no outward marks of injury, and inasmuch as Donald had all the time retained full consciousness, and assured his anxious parents that he suffered comparatively little pain, it was at first confidently hoped that he would fully recover from his injuries unless inflammation should set in. Until within four or five minutes of his death the boy was clearly conscious, and suffered but little, when suddenly he became distressed by difficulty in breathing, and on mentioning this fact to his mother, the doctor was again hastily summoned, but before he could reach the patient, life was extinct.

Donald was an exceptionally bright young scholar, having passed the Entrance examinations two or three years ago, and was a general favorite with his teachers and fellow pupils. He was a member of the Methodist Church, and is survived by his grief stricken parents, and by three sisters, who are absent from home, and are now at Saskatoon, in the Province of Saskatchewan. Funeral was held from the residence of his parents, Sunday, at one o'clock p. m.

THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

Napanee, Nov, 8th, 1910.

To the members of the Napanee Curling Club:

Gentlemen:—

In presenting the President's annual report for the past year I regret that the conditions were not favorable for a record season for the weather man almost completely failed us at important times.

In the Eastern League the schedule was played under great difficulties owing to want of ice and the result at the close of the season was a tie with Brockville which has yet to be played off.

In the Ontario Tankard Napanee was put out of business the first game. It was raining and the ice was covered with water, conditions with which Napanee was not familiar. The Clubs in our group were the only clubs playing on the regular date all the other groups having postponed their games. The last games even in our group had to be postponed on account of the condition of the ice.

In the District Cup Competition similar conditions prevailed and after one postponement two rinks went to Kingston in the morning ready to play at 9 a. m., and in the absence of any players the umpire, Mr. E. Lyons, was called up and answered that he was just calling up Napanee to tell them that the games were postponed. He admitted that he had called up all the other clubs in the group the night before. No notice was sent to our club of any change in the hour originally named for the beginning of the competition, viz, 9 a. m. The referee was advised of these facts in a letter which probably melted some ice around his parts. The two rinks are reported however to have had a good twenty hour continuous performance which meant a real good time.

I believe there was a marked improvement in the conditions at the rink last season, due perhaps principally to the good man we engaged for caretaker who kept the place clean and did a lot of work we were never before able to get done by the caretaker.

White washing the rink added to the light and the cleanly appearance, and I would suggest that the whole of the inside of the rink be white washed this season.

The rink has been widened at a very moderate cost, but the work is not fully completed. The members are requested to keep this fact in mind when dealing with the finances of the Club, and pay their membership fees and dues early.

I think it is a matter of congratulation that we had the largest membership in the club last season of any year in its history, enabling us to have fourteen rinks. I hope that the club will not only be able to continue this membership during the coming season, but will be able to add to it, for with the additional sheet of ice every rink should be able to play three times a week during the season by playing an occasional afternoon game unless the weather man goes on holidays.

Further I wish to thank the officers and members for the loyal support they have given me during my term of office, and wish you to consider all matters pertaining to the welfare of the club as heartily as you have in the past, and am glad to announce here that another medal will be offered for competition to the club, and I believe Mr. J. S. Ham is in a position to give particulars of the donation.

In conclusion I might refer to the marriage of Mr. C. I. Maybee, one of our most valued curlers, which event was made the occasion for presentation of a silver tea service suitable engraved accompanied by an address.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

HERBERT DALY,
President N. C. C.

LOCAL OPTION.

The following is supplied by the Local Option Committee.

In a recent address an eminent British public man said, "In considering the value of evidence for or against any particular course of proceeding the motive which affects those giving testimony must never be lost sight of." This is a principle that the voters of Napanee will do well to bear in mind as they listen to the various arguments for and against Local Option.

There cannot be much doubt as to the motive which sways those who are interested in the liquor traffic. It can be summed up in one word—Cash. They are in the business for the money that is in it. There is not even a pretence on their part that it is a benefit to the ordinary individual or to the community at large.

On the other hand, we have in our midst a class of institutions whose very existence is founded on the desire to forward the uplifting of Humanity. These institutions are the Churches, and what ever we may think of the various tenets upheld by the different denominations, whether we accept the general teachings of all them, or even if we are not prepared to accept the general teachings of any of them, in a matter of this kind we may safely assume that when the Churches speak no selfish motive actuates their testimony.

VOTERS OF NAPANEE, upon whose evidence will you place the most reliance—upon that of the liquor sellers whose motive is cash for themselves, or upon that of the Churches, who with unanimous voice recommend Local Option, and whose motive can only be the good of the people?

GOOD EFFECT ON BUSINESS.

Many merchants claim increased trade, a better class of goods being sold, old accounts being paid, and people from the surrounding country coming to town to do business in preference to going to Barrie or Gravenhurst where there are bars and which towns are nearer. They prefer coming where there are not the temptations. Only yesterday (Sunday, Oct. 2) my wife and I visited friends mid-way between Orillia and Barrie and were told of several farmers who drove a few miles further to get to Orillia to trade in preference to going to Barrie. One farmer told me his wife would rather walk 14 miles to Orillia than drive 10 miles to Barrie. She preferred coming to a clean town where she could drive in and out without danger of being jostled by drunken men, and she preferred taking her sons to a town where there are no temptations.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR.

To the Editor of the Napanee Express.

MR. EDITOR—Your correspondent in your last issue thinks he has made a discovery when he finds that in less than two years under Scott Act rule there were 139 prosecutions in this County for selling liquor. So he has made a discovery if he will but see it.

He has revealed the startling truth that local option even over a whole county was so repugnant that during the short period of two years, notwithstanding the "improved machinery" for enforcing the law, 139 informations were laid for breaches of the law, and experience has shown that not one case of illegal sale in one hundred is brought to light. The vigilance of "improved machinery" forced the law breakers to conceal their "drunks" in back yards, barns, cellars, sheds and upper rooms, hence the small number of prosecutions for drunkenness. 139 prosecutions is a wonderful crop of offenders. What other statute is so productive of criminals? If local option over a whole County, fosters crime, the crime of selling liquor, how is it proposed to enforce it in one small municipality with liquor for sale only seven miles away? Better by far to sell by the glass in Napanee than have it brought here by the jug-full from Deseronto. Newburgh, Bath and Kingston! Better by far to have a few well regulated hotels than a score of dives answerable to no regulations. Has the present generation not yet heard of the famous Scott Act trails? Witness after witness paraded before the Magistrate steeped in perjury, and why? Because prohibitive sumptuary laws are regarded by the great majority of citizens as an unwarranted invasion of private rights and discrimination between neighbors has always been and always will be viewed with disfavour. What would be lawful in

GOD SAVE THE KING

IT IS THE NATIONAL AIR OF TWELVE NATIONS.

Dr. Henry Carey Was the Author,
While Dr. Bull Wrote the Air.

The origin of "God Save the King," the national song of England—in fact, it might be said, the national air of 12 nations—has been a matter of endless discussion. It remains a question as hotly debated as ever, in spite of the fact that volumes have been written on the subject, and it is a controversy that will, probably, never be settled.

Knight, in his "Half Hours with the Best Authors," says: "The most popular song in the world is our 'God Save Our Queen.' The history of its composition is very uncertain. Perhaps the best sustained theory is that it was originally a Jacobite song, written during the rebellion of 1715 by Henry Carey, and partly composed by him. It rushed into popularity in the English theatres in 1743, and Carey himself sang it publicly in 1740, having changed James, to George. The air is simple and yet stately. It is capable of calling forth the talents of the finest vocal performers, and yet is admirably adapted for a chorus, in which the humblest pretender in music may join. The words are not elegant but they are very impressive; and the homeliness of some of the lines may have contributed to its universality."

CONFLICTING STATEMENTS.

Killikely, in his "Curious Questions," states: "The author of the English national anthem, 'God Save the King' (or Queen), was Dr. Henry Carey, born in London about 1690, and died in 1743. The poem was written in honor of a birthday of George II., but it has undergone some changes as regards the words. The music was composed by Dr. Bull."

The most generally accepted theory, nevertheless, is that Henry Carey wrote it for James II., the exiled King, and that it was revived and sung during the rebellion of 1715 and 1746, and then silenced by the failure of the Jacobites, until it reappeared with the reading, "God Save Great George, Our King," substituted for the original one.

Richard Clarke, the popular English composer, made a research covering a number of years, and finally published a book in which he asserts that the anthem was written in the reign of James I. by Ben Jonson, who was poet laureate. He says it was written at the particular request of the Merchant Tailors' Company, and was sung in their hall at the first public appearance of King James after the discovery of the gun-powder plot. It is true, it probably explains the meaning of the last two lines of the second verse:

Confound their politics,
Frustrate their knavish tricks.

CAREY'S CLAIM.

There is no evidence that can be produced to show that Carey claimed for himself the composing of the song. It is possible that he could have secured from some person the

THE CALCUTTA UNIVERSITY.

All Creeds and Castes Represented in the Student Body.

A great modern university in Calcutta is something of a surprise to the Western mind. It was founded in 1857, modelled after the University of London. The idea was to make it an examining institution with the right of conferring degrees in art, law, medicine and civil engineering.

Experience led to radical changes. The institution became a teaching as well as an examining one. But it still remains a place to which most of the students come from other colleges either to finish their course or merely to take their degree. Some of these colleges are missionary; others are more of the private school character.

At any one of the university examinations, says the Independent, may be found students from Hindu, Mohammedan, Christian and other colleges. The examination room in the Senate House of the university on an examination day is a microcosm of the races, the religious beliefs, the castes and the diverse culture of India.

The breadth of the service rendered to the people of India and to the people of the world by the University of Calcutta is intimated in the number and variety of subjects in which it examines candidates for its degrees.

Among them are English, Bengali, Hindu, Urya, Assamese, Burmese, Urdu, Modern Armenian, Classical Armenian, Arabic, Persian, Sanscrit, Hebrew, Greek, Latin, French, German, history, political economy and political philosophy, mental and moral philosophy, mathematics, physics, chemistry, physiology, botany and zoology.

The great day for the student, for the teacher, for the examiner, for the vice-chancellor and the chancellor of the University of Calcutta, as of every university, is the day of the annual convocation. This day falls in what would be in America the very midst of the academic year. It is a day not unlike the similar day at Oxford or at either the old or the new Cambridge.

But in one respect the difference is marked. In India the State or civil authority is manifestly made superior to the academic. The Governor-General or Lieutenant-Governor presides, confers degrees and awards honors.

The Indian university is also more punctilious as regards academic order and ceremonial. Academic costume is prescribed on the degree conferring occasion with far more care than in the American college. It is said that "graduates shall wear a European dress with a college cap, or a chapkan and trousers with a shawl pagree and black taz."

No less than eight requirements are also laid down for the gowns and hoods of the several degrees. The Indian student is not a student of the type in which the college officer and teacher rejoice. He lacks those virtues which are summed up in the good old word thoroughness. He finds it hard to concentrate his mind on a single subject. His heart seems fixed upon the prizes which the higher education may offer rather than upon the higher education itself. He is precocious, premature. He may enter the university at 14 and become a bachelor of arts at 18. He may also be married before the age of 18. The sun-

BLOODLESS SURGERY.

Made Possible by a Newly Discovered Method.

Dr. F. Nagelschmidt of Berlin, Germany, has just demonstrated before the Electro-Therapeutic section of the Royal Society of Medicine his discovery of a method of performing surgical operations without shedding blood by employing a distinct modification of ordinary high frequency electricity. In Dr. Nagelschmidt's apparatus, which gives a greater current than the high frequency apparatus, but with a lower frequency, two wires lead from the generator to electrodes placed on each side of the part to be operated on, and on the application of the current the flow of blood in the region between the electrodes is stopped by the coagulation of the albumen in the blood and tissue. The area of coagulation can be widened or narrowed by using broader or narrower electrodes. Dr. Nagelschmidt believes the method will be particularly useful in dealing with large surface cancers especially the type called "en cuirasse." He has successfully operated on three or four cancers, and has also removed tonsils without loss of blood.

There is, however, difficulty and, except in very skilled hands, danger in the operation, because there is some risk of the blood coagulating in the large veins in the area between the electrodes, thereby forming clots. This difficulty is met by the application of vaseline ointment, containing 2 per cent. of pyrogallie acid which retards the otherwise too rapid healing, the result of which would not only mean the encouragement of clotting, but the creation of redundant proud flesh and ugly scarring. If this is properly guarded against, the method is declared to be an enormous advance on any existing as obviating shock from loss of blood.

ELECTRICITY'S LATEST USE.

Helps the Growth and Improves the Health of Plants.

The latest experiments in applying the electric current to growing plants and flowers, as reported by Prof. J. H. Priestley of the Botanical Laboratory at Briston (England) University, tend to show that the current not only accelerates the growth, but also in some ways improves their health, and makes them stronger and better able to resist disease.

The precise action of the current is not yet fully understood. There is a difference in the color of electrified and non-electrified growing wheat, the former being a darker green in consequence of the plants obtaining more nitrogen from the air. The increase in yield of wheat under electrical cultivation amounted in one case to almost one-third.

The current, as a rule, is conducted by wire from the generating station, or power house, to the field and there arises to a very high voltage before distribution over the field on wires attached to poles ten feet high. Escaping from the wire to the ground, the current passes through the plants and so completes the circuit. In cloudy or foggy weather there is a greater current escaping from the wire. The cost of the electrical stimulation is not as great as that of stimulation supplied by the use of phosphate or other ordinary enrichers.

CAREY'S CLAIM.

There is no evidence that can be produced to show that Carey claimed for himself the composing of the song. It is possible that he could have secured from some person the Jenson words and then wrote a new line to give an especial Jacobite twist to the sentiments, and set it afloat to the praise of the exiled house of Stuart. There is no doubt that he sang it in public with "Great George, the King," and that it became popular through his introducing it. Carey's life of 80 years extended through the reigns of Charles II., James II., William and Mary, Queen Anne and two of the Georges.

Carey's son, already mentioned, who was born the year his father died, stoutly contended for his father's authorship of music as well as words, but nearly all authorities agree that Dr. Bull wrote the music. Bull was a famous composer of the reign of King James.

BELONGS TO THE WORLD.

Regarding the internationality of the English National Hymn, when Samuel F. Smith wrote his patriotic song, "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," in 1822, it was sung to the same tune as "God Save the King," under the name "America." According to a French journal, "The Charivari," Handel copied the tune from St. Cyr melody, the authorship of which is claimed by Luille. Besides England, the United States and Germany, it figured among the patriotic or national airs of nine other nations. In Bavaria it is "Heil! Unserm Konig, Heil!" In Switzerland it is "Rufst du, Mein Vaterland." It is used to various sets of words in Brunswick, Hanover, Wurtemberg, Prussia, Saxony, Weimar and Norway.

The statement that the air of the English National Hymn was due to French inspiration is confirmed in the "Memoirs of Madame deGrenay," in which we find the canticle that used to be sung by the young ladies of St. Cyr whenever Louis XIV. entered their chapel to hear morning mass. The first stanza was as follows:

Grand Dieu Sauve le Roi
Grand Dieu venge le Roi
Vive le Roi.
Que toujours gloireux.
Louis victorieux.
Voyez ses ennemis
Toujours sourds.

These words were written by de Brenon, and the music, as stated, by Luille, who was a distinguished composer.

in the good old word thoroughness. He finds it hard to concentrate his mind on a single subject. His heart seems fixed upon the prizes which the higher education may offer rather than upon the higher education itself. He is precocious, premature. He may enter the university at 14 and become a bachelor of arts at 18. He may also be married before the age of 18. The support of a family does not promote thoroughness or length of university careers.

THE MIDDLEAGED MAN.

His Greatest Happiness in a Life That to Youth is Irksome.

"Younger people," said the middle-aged man, "want variety, they want to be always on the go. Routine galls them; they hate to have to do the same thing over and over again day after day.

"They want to go somewhere or do something different all the time. Older people are happiest in a life of routine, most disturbed when variety is thrust upon them.

"For myself I welcome my daily task, endlessly repeated and always the same. I should be lost without it, disturbed if it were changed. A life of habit suits me best. I like the old scenes, familiar, friendly surroundings. I don't want to change.

"Nor do I want much outside pleasure. In fact I think I should be the best suited with none. I like my groove; it fits me and I fit it. I don't want change. I just want to be left alone to work in my accustomed ways. It is in my groove that I am most comfortable. I like a life of labor and routine.

And could there come to one a greater blessing? Nature and the customs of men enforce routine upon us whether we like it or not. In youth this irks us, but in our maturer years in a life of routine in the undisturbed enjoyment of familiar labor we may find our greatest happiness.

HOW TO WASH WINDOWS.

Strange as it may seem, there is a right and wrong way to wash windows, and as this operation is usually dreaded, the following method will doubtless be appreciated, as it saves both time and labor. Choose a dull day, or at least a time when the sun is not shining on the windows, for when the sun shines on the window it causes it to be dry streaked no matter how much it is rubbed. Take a painter's brush and dust them inside and out, washing all the woodwork inside before touching the glass. The latter must be washed slowly in warm water diluted with ammonia—do not use soap. Use a small cloth with a pointed stick to get the dust out of the corners; wipe dry with a soft piece of cotton cloth—do not use linen, as it makes the glass dirty when dry. Polish with tissue paper or old newspaper. You will find that this can be done in half the time taken where soap is used, and the result will be brighter windows.

PREPARED.

DRINKS DISPLACE WHISKEY.

What Tax Collectors Tell of England's Changing Tastes.

This is the tea and cocoa age in Britain. More than a third less alcohol, especially whiskey, is drunk. Less coffee, more tea and cocoa, more tobacco, more card playing, more dogs, more men-servants (due to the chauffeur), more pawnbrokers, fewer armorial bearings, are some of the curious facts brought out in the report of the commissioners of customs and excise.

Of all sorts of alcoholic drinks the country now consumes 23½ gallons for each inhabitant in a year. Ten years ago the amount was thirty-three gallons per head. In the use of tea, coffee and cocoa, combined, there is a slight increase in ten years, the same with tobacco. The tax on playing cards now yields $145,000 a year, showing a thirty per cent. increase. There are 4,000 fewer publicans, but 37,000 more tobacconists, than when the century began, 24,000 more men-servants, and 330,000 more dogs; the exact number of canines, according to the tax reports, being 1,624,801.

EVOLUTION OF LISBON.

Lisbon, the capital of Portugal, sometimes claims to have been founded by Ulysses in the course of his wanderings. But, according to the London Chronicle, there is no doubt that Ulyssippo is only a fanciful version of Olisipo, the most ancient name of what was probably at first a Phoenician city. When the Romans absorbed and municipalized Olisipo it became Felicitas Julia, but in the hands of the Moors it slipped back to Lashbuna. Byron's line in "Childe Harold," "What beauties does Lisboa first unfold?" gives the Portuguese spelling of the name to-day.

AN HISTORIC MISSILE.

Bullet That Killed Nelson, Treasure of Windsor Castle.

The bullet that killed Nelson, which was exhibited in King Edward's loan collection at the White City, London, is one of the priceless treasures at Windsor Castle. It is kept there set in the locket in which it was originally enshrined by Dr. Beatty, the surgeon of the Victory. The doctor made the post-mortem examination of Nelson's body on the Victory's arrival in the Downs three weeks after the battle, when the body was removed from the cask of spirits in which it had been brought home. Dr. Beatty had it set in a locket which he wore under his clothing until his death, some forty years afterwards. His brother then presented it to Queen Victoria at Windsor Castle. King Edward, on his ascension, presented most of the relics of Nelson that were at Windsor to the Greenwich Hospital, but he would not hear of the Nelson bullet going out of royal hands, and King George is little likely to part with it.

Forests of Durable Teak Restricted to Area in South Asia.

Some of the most useful products of our planet are confined to small areas of its surface, situated at a great distance from the main centres of population and industry. India rubber is one of these, teak, the most valuable ship timber in existence, is another.

Extensive teak forests are, it may be generally stated, restricted to Burma, Siam, and Cochinchina. There are only three ports in the world from which teak is exported—Rangoon, Moulmein, and Bangkok. It is a beautiful dark colored wood, taking a high finish, and its value in ship-building depends upon its strength, its durability, its resistance to both moisture and drought, its non-liability to be attacked by boring insects, its lightness in the water, and its resistance to the influence of iron when brought in close contact. In this last point of excellence it has no substitute as a backing for armourplate.

That it will tend to raise the marriageable age of girls is only one of the consequences that will follow therefrom. Having regard to the position of the reformer, we may expect his example not only to influence opinion in his community, but to weaken the power of caste generally for if the caste may be defied in one case it may be defied in another, says the Times of India.

It may indeed be remembered that chiefs have sometimes claimed special liberties for themselves, and these have not affected the customs of their communities. In rare instances a Hindu chief has married a Mohammedan wife, but his community has remained as inexorable as before in its exclusiveness. The intermarriages between Hindu and Mohammedan ruling families in the time of Akbar had little influence on the marriage customs of the generality of Rajputs. Then again it has sometimes happened that a Hindu chief of one sect adopts some of the ceremonies of another sect in his palace, either from or as a compromise to earn the good will of influential sections of his subjects.

The religious neutrality which the British Government observes was often adopted in different forms by the Hindu kings. But their compromises became the special customs of the palace and did not affect popular customs. In the absence of the spread of education and of the ferment in Hindu society the isolated conduct of a ruling chief would have been of comparatively little consequence. Coupled with the wider and more persistent influence of English education, its potentiality for good is heightened.

Even in the days of Raja Ram Mohun Roy it must have been perceived that the most logical way of facilitating social reforms was to undermine the caste which stood as a barrier in their way. But as an attack on caste simply meant in practice that a few individuals cut themselves off from their relations and friends, without producing any immediate effect upon them, the price paid for reforms by individual suffering was generally felt to be beyond the real value of the article and compromises were frequent and indeed

ALMOST INVARIABLE.

Caste rules can be easily enforced in villages and small towns, where every man's eye is upon every other and the necessity for mutual aid is great. The growth of the larger towns and cities, the facilities for travelling, the increasing popularity of migration, the growing pressure upon the time of men of business and education which disinclines them to enter upon petty investigations of individual lapses, the spread of liberalizing literature and the power wielded by the educated classes—all these have compelled even the most sincere and

OLD-TIME SKIPPERS.

Some Good Stories of These Worthy Captains.

The English seafaring men were trained to the service in the service itself. Their lessons were those of duty from the rank of cabin-boy to that of master. Such a school was likely to turn out men of efficiency but not of extensive learning. Into his book, "The Romance of the Coast," Mr. James Runciman has gathered some stories of these worthies.

A man who could neither read nor write would take his vessel without a mistake from port to port. The lights on the coast were his only books, and his one intellectual exercise consisted in calculating the set of the ebb and the flood. With all the phenomena that he was used to observe in his ordinary life, he could deal promptly and sagaciously, but anything new tended to disarrange his mind.

When steamers were first ordered to carry red and green side-lights, with a high white light hung forward, an old sea-captain saw the mysterious colored circles coming down upon him. He did not understand this new thing and his faculties became confused. He shouted, "Hard astarboard! We'll be into a chemist's shop."

Another master who happened to have a leisure evening went to hear a popular lecture on astronomy. He was much troubled by what he heard and explained his perplexity with great feeling. "The man told the lot of us," he said, "that the world turned round and round; but I cannot understand how that can be. The Hatter's Rock has been there ever since I can mind."

One skipper who could read and use a chart was despatched to Rotterdam. After going over the bar and well away to the east, he produced his charts and made a learned inspection; but the charts had been a long time in the locker, and circumstances combined to alarm him extremely. He went up on deck and called to his mate "Put her about; the rats have eaten Holland!"

One old captain bored away through a fog for several days under the impression that he was going north about from Liverpool. After a long time a vessel came past, and the lost captain inquired, "Are we going right for the Castle foot?"

The stranger made answer, "What Castle foot?"

Whereupon the incensed skipper said, "There's only one Castle foot; Tynemouth Castle."

The answer was discouraging: "If you go as you're going, you'll be at Newfoundland in a very short time."

The old hero felt his way back, and after many days and much hailing of passing ships he sighted St. Abbs Head. He then said, with pride, "Ah, here's England! I thought I would fetch her."

DAYS THREE MONTHS LONG.

Where You Go to Bed and Wake Up in Daylight for Weeks.

How would you like to live in a place where the longest day lasted three months and a half? But that really is the length of the longest day in Spitzbergen, a far northern cape on the way to the North Pole. At a place called Wardbury, in Norway, the longest day lasts from May 21 to July 22; that means that it's daylight all the time, so that you go to bed in daylight and wake up in daylight, too, for ever so many weeks. It must be funny, mustn't it?

At St. Petersburg, the capital of Russia, the longest day lasts nineteen hours and the shortest one only five hours. London's longest day is sixteen and a half hours, while New York's is about fifteen hours.

Japan Has More Toy Shops Than Any Other Country.

There is no other country in the world where there are so many toy shops as Japan. In all the towns and in most of the villages there is a children's bazaar, and the neighborhood of the principal temples is crowded with stalls containing things to amuse children. At the great religious festivals, even the poorest are to be met with their arms full of toys to take home to the children; and the number of men and women who earn a livelihood by itinerant street shows gotten up solely to amuse the children, can be counted by hundreds. These entertainments include theatricals, where brave deeds are performed by heroic warriors, story-tellers, song-singers, and the Wide World adds, even conjurers.

PIGTAILS IN BRITISH ARMY.

Pigtails, which are threatened with extinction in China, survived in our army until well into the nineteenth century, the Welsh Fusiliers being the last to abandon them, says the London Chronicle. Sir Algernon West relates how he heard an argument once as to whether the Blues did or did not wear pig-tails at Waterloo. One of the disputants, who had seen them on their way to Dover, was convinced that they did. The other who had been a midshipman on the transport which conveyed them to Ostend, was equally certain that their hair was short. The giver of the dinner at which the dispute arose referred the matter on the following day to a friend who had served in the Blues at Waterloo. "Both your friends were right," he said. "We were reviewed at Windsor by the King on our departure with our pigtails on, and at Dover we had them cut off before our embarkation."

towns and cities, the increasing popularity of migration, the growing pressure upon the time of men of business and education which disinclines them to enter upon petty investigations of individual lapses, the spread of liberalizing literature and the power wielded by the educated classes—all these have compelled even the most sincere and earnest advocates of caste to allow matters to slide and to purchase peace at any price.

The caste tribunals maintain no criminal intelligence department and they have no laws of extradition. Punishment can be easily evaded by those who are on the move. Thus the institution of caste is slowly dissolving, not only because the fierce light of enlightened reason is beating upon it but also because it is physically difficult to make men moral by

MEANS OF CASTE RULES.

The Sanatana Dharma revivalists are bound to rehabilitate or to support if they can the Varna or caste which has come to be recognized as an essential element in Hinduism.

Some writers have indeed said that when caste vanishes nothing will be left in Hinduism, and that word will be a misnomer. Educated Hindus do not admit this. The preachers of Vedanta are placing Hinduism on a religious instead of a social basis. Whether they succeed in their efforts or not, the Sanatana Dharma revivalists cannot prop up an institution which is crumbling under a fire directed from so many quarters. The chief of Sangli is one general in the army. Yet his volleys must be more destructive than those discharged by smaller men.

THE ENGINEER'S HEART.

The British Amalgamated Society of Engineers has now a membership of well over 100,000, and is probably the largest trade union in the world, or at least the strongest financially. The vital statistics, therefore, in such a large and widely scattered body should prove of particular importance.

From the table in the latest annual report showing number and cause of death, with the average age, it would appear that affections of the heart carry off more members than any two other troubles combined. Old age, 91; bronchitis, 93, and pneumonia, 98, for instance, provide the largest figures in the table until we come to affections of the heart, when there is a jump to 214. The engineer would seem to be liable to heart trouble, which appears to terminate fatally in his case at an average age of 60.

GOLD LEAF HAS HISTORY.

The origin of gold leaf, like the first use of gold itself, is lost in the mists of antiquity. It is found, for example, in connection with the most ancient known mummies, having been used for covering teeth, tongues, skin, etc. Sometimes it is also found on the coffins. Gold leaf was also used on the tombs and monuments of ancient Egypt. The process of making gold leaf has thus been known since the 8th century B. C. In the 11th century it seems to have attained as high a degree of perfection as to-day. The gold leaf on some ancient Grecian pottery indeed is as thin as that now used.

IRON ORE FROM LAKES.

Swedes Reap Crop from Lake Beds Every Thirty Years.

The bottoms of many Swedish lakes are covered to a thickness of six or eight inches with fragments of iron ore of the size of peas. This lake ore consists chiefly of ochre or hydrated oxide of iron, mixed with silicate and phosphate of iron, clay, sand and other impurities, and yields pig iron of very good quality. The ore is obtained by very primitive methods. In winter a hole is cut in the ice, a scraper attached to a long pole is inserted, and all the ore within reach is collected into a heap beneath the hole. Some of the mud which has been scraped together with the ore is removed by stirring the mass with poles, and the ore is then scraped into bags which have been sunk, and is hauled up. In summer this curious mining operation is conducted in a similar manner from rafts anchored in the lake. Two miners can bring up about four tons of ore in a day. Steam dredges have recently been installed in a few places. About 30 years after the removal of the ore, a new layer of the same thickness is found to have been produced by natural chemical processes.

LAWYERS' FEES FIXED.

He is Also Forbidden to Advertise in Newspapers.

The German law fixes the exact fees which a German attorney has to claim for all kinds of professional work and the rechtsanwalt can charge neither more nor less.

These fees apply to all matters of the Civil Code and of criminal cases. The amount, according to the Green Bag, depends exclusively on the value of the object of contention.

It is an old though still unfulfilled wish of German lawyers to have a new fixed list of fees—not made after the old and low standard of the year 1879, but made with consideration to the changes—the numerous decided changes—which have taken place since that year.

The rechtsanwalt is attorney and counsellor at law all in one (in England solicitor and barrister). The rechtsanwalt can never be a business man as is the case in the United States.

The exercise of the law is not to be considered a calling or profession, but is to be looked on more as a public office. According to the lawyers' code of the 1st of July, 1878, lawyers are charged publicly with certain duties.

He is obliged to have his residence in the town or district where he is appointed (so-called residence duty). Further, he must conduct himself in and out of office in a way befitting his professional and social standing (i.e., duty due to his rank). Thus a lawyer is forbidden to advertise in newspapers, by canvassing, etc., or to buy or take over a practice already made, as being unworthy of his calling.

His position in society is between officials and scholars and through custom and law he is compelled to keep the position to the last degree. This compulsion to keep one's rank has given rise to the existence of committees called anwaltschammern, whose duty it is to keep a strict watch that no lawyer dishonors his calling. These committees have a strict code of punishment, ranging to complete expulsion from office. In this way the lawyers in Germany have a good and honored position; in fact there is scarcely a country in which the lawyer enjoys more respect and confidence.

When the world hopes for a peaceable adjustment of the difficulties in which the new republic of Portugal finds itself, there is much speculation as to what will become of the country's colonies. Aside from Portuguese East Africa, these are not usually given much consideration, but as a matter of fact in the eastern hemisphere Portugal ranks fourth in her colonial possessions. In area they cover no less than 600,000 square miles, and they have a population in excess of 10,000,000. In Delagoa Bay, Portugal has an almost invaluable possession, holding as it does the key to the Transvaal and other upper British African states. In vain have Great Britain and Germany tried to purchase the port. They failed as did Kruger before them. The Portuguese control a coast line of 1,400 miles containing the best two harbors in South Africa. Their possessions on the east coast are remarkably rich in the production of rubber, wax, gums, tobacco, coffee, oils, and gold, although the resources have not by any means reached their highest stage of development.

But in proportion to their size, two little islands in the Gulf of Guinea on the west coast are by far the richest of the Portuguese colonies. San Thome and Principe, known as the cocoa islands, have exports of $7,500,000 annually in cocoa, rubber, cinchona and coffee. The labor is performed by natives from the mainland, under conditions but little removed from slavery. The cocoa production is the largest in the world. Of late British manufacturers have been obliged to forego the use of the product of these islands because of the slave labor. The action of the new Portuguese government in the matter of slavery will have an important bearing on the prosperity of the colony. The mainland possession of Guinea is largely undeveloped, but has great possibilities for the rubber trade.

In India, Portugal has two towns, Goa and Damao, of little importance and in China there is Macao, an island at the mouth of the Canton river, inhabited entirely by Chinese, but paying a surplus over expenses into the national treasury. With Holland, Portugal shares the island of Timor, one of the Malay archipelago. If there is the right material in the new men who have arisen to govern and rehabilitate the mother land, Portugal's colonies may see a wonderful administrative revolution which will result in the exploitation of their industrial prosperity and the enrichment of all concerned.

DIVINE IN YOUR HUMANITY

Our Hearts Are Ever Hungry Without This Food of the Ideal

"Put off thy shoes from off thy feet, for the place whereon thou standest is holy ground."—Exodus iii. 5.

The offence of blasphemy is not that it is an insult to the majesty of the Almighty; it is that it is a foolish indulgence in extravagance of language, a reckless using, on trivial provocation, of words with meaning that the occasion does not fit, with meaning and significances that belong to the deep places of man's history. It despoils our own sacred places.

Reverence is simply a sense of the fitness of things, a power to judge of real values, a recognition of meanings that lie below the surface, the habit of acknowledging that not all things are on the same sad level of insignificance and flippancy, that sometimes mean more than others and some flowers that bloom in our hearts are not to be worn in a jester's belt.

Many a man thinks he is enriching his vocabulary when he is only impoverishing his imagination and razing the peaks and filling up the quiet hidden valleys of his life until it is all one dead level of the commonplace where there is neither high nor low, great nor small, nor ought to move the heart to deep feeling or cause the pulses to leap with

NOBLE ASPIRATION.

To cherish the letter written by a hand now lying still forever, to shut your door once in a while and set the gadding throng outside while you look over memory's treasures, to feel there are thoughts too deep for words, to kindle with youth's enthusiasm at some noble prospect or high call does not mark you as the immature and sophomoric; it but proves the divine in your humanity.

He who has nothing within too sacred to talk about has nothing in him worth talking about. The poverty of many a man both for himself and towards others is simply due often to this, that he has torn down the walls of all the sacred places in his life, he has stifled every aspiration until he is world worn, the footmarks of flippancy are trodden all over where, sweet and fair, the flowers of heaven might have bloomed.

It is not superstition to recognize relative values in this world, to hold some things dearer than others and to be able to see the content of great words, the meaning of great events and to feel the emotions that belong to sublime occasions and thoughts. It does not mean that we are in dread of hidden spirits and therefore prostrate ourselves before their names and abodes; it means that we know a world that holds more than

DUST AND RAGS.

It is not the mark of the superstitious craven to instinctively take off the hat in some places, that act is no more than the simple, spontaneous recognition of the spiritual values of the place, of what its history or associations may have meant to others or might mean to us. A small man could not do it naturally, for he would be unable to entertain large thoughts.

Reverence is one of the qualities of greatness. No man can climb any higher than his own heart or rise above his own visions. A great soul carries ever with him the sense of the sublime, the capacity to recognize thoughts and things greater than his own and the humbleness of soul that knows their larger values. Such men are habitual worshippers of worthy things.

It is not courage, still less is it high wisdom, that makes men scoff at the thought of holy ground; it is a narrowness of vision or a poverty of the imagination a likeness to the undeveloped child mind which thinks almost wholly in terms of the concrete. So often does he who boasts that he has outgrown reverence simply confess that he has not yet grown into it. He has shaken off the shackles of superstition; he has not stepped into

THE GREAT SUBLIME OPEN.

Some day we shall learn the dark folly of the cynic's mockery at ideals we shall repent of the dull eyed utilitarianism that thinks it is so farsighted because it refuses to believe in anything it cannot see or to count as worthy anything it cannot see, for such time serving will have had its crop of base lives dragged ever lower by heavy souls that have not learned to look up.

We need our sacred days, our holidays, our sacred places, and scenes, not as shrines to fearful duties but as houses of memory, inspirations to nobleness, expressions of the spirit of reverence, of recognition of that which is high. Our hearts are ever hungry without this food of the ideal, while for us all the desert disappears whenever we seem to hear a voice saying, This is holy ground.

In these days when the mechanism of life threatens to drown its music, when the things that are only things crowd out those that are more, we especially need to cherish the hours and seek out the places where the inner life may be refreshed whence we may catch some far views, realize the eternal values and feel ourselves in the presence of the infinite and divine.

there was a certainty about the coming of the flood that is like the inevitableness of the coming of the Son of man. It all happened with frightful suddenness, and they were wholly unprepared. So men, in spite of the solemn warnings of the sure approach of death and judgment, trade upon the uncertainty

A BEDTIME BEAR STORY.

"Tell us about a weeny, teeny, squealing little bear!" begged Frankie, as he was taking off his shoes and preparing for bed.

"Yes, tell us about one that was all furry and dear, so we won't be afraid when the light is out," said Ted, who was honest enough to own that stories of wild animals kept him awake.

"Well," said mother, "I will tell you one about such a loving little bear that you will like to go to sleep thinking about him."

"That's the kind!" shouted the boys.

"Well," began mother, "there was once a dear little bear that had lost his father and mother. I am afraid that some hunter had shot them, and the little bear was made an orphan just to please their love of sport. Anyway, he lived all alone, and I think he was often afraid of the wind and the rain and all the lonesome sounds heard at night out in the great wood.

"When he grew hungry he followed a little brook that ran through the wood, and he walked along by the edge of the water. He was so young that he did not know how to find his food.

"As he walked along he suddenly came out to the side of a hill, and there he saw a strange-looking sight. It was a little box of a house, and in it were some children looking out of the window. Their father and mother were away, and the children were so afraid that they ran and hid and kept very still. But the dear little bear came straight along and even looked in at the window of the little house. There were some scraps of bread and some molasses cakes on a plate near the door, where the children had been playing 'keep house.' The little bear sniffed as if he were pleased, and then he had a little party of his own right there, and ate up all the refreshments. After awhile he went back to the brook to drink some water.

"The mother and father of the children heard about this when they came home, and the next day they left some pieces of food scattered along from the brook to the house, so as to lead the bear back again. Then they watched, and this time the miner sat on the doorstep without moving, and sure enough, the little bear came and ate some food near by. This happened every day for a long time, until at last the baby bear did not fear the people at all, and came nearer and nearer, until he was quite tame.

"The miner's family were very kind to all animals. They were afraid when the snow came the next winter that the little baby bear would not know how to find a home in a tree trunk. And, too, they thought it was not best to have him grow up and come to the house when he was big and strong. So the miner wrote to some people he knew who wanted a bear for an exhibition in the city. The men came way up on the mountainside with a queer team that held a cage, and the miner helped them take the little bear away.

"The men gave fifty dollars for the little fellow, and that was Shall the school room be ventilated in accordance with modern sanitary principles? No one who has gone to school will forget the neglect of ventilation. No intelligent person will doubt the evil effects of bad air. Disease is one of the effects, and the worst. But it is not the only effect. Beside acute diseases and contagion, and the slow undermining of the child's strength, is the loss of his mental efficiency. No child poisoned with bad air can learn rapidly or well. In the saving of life and health, and in the increase of educational results, proper ventilation is a measure of common humanity and immediate practical economy. No time should be lost in bringing about this betterment.

The public is prone to shudder at the statements of government investigators who declare that meat can now be preserved a year or so in storage without danger of putrefaction, but what will this same public say to the statement of the Italian experts who have discovered a means of mummifying the fresh killed beef or sheep so that not even ice is required to keep the meat in a perfectly normal and luscious condition in a moderate temperature? The procedure described sounds so elaborate that one can scarcely believe it will be feasible for practical purposes. First a simple solution of 100 parts of water, 25 parts of common salt, and 4 parts of acetic acid is prepared. Then when the beast is killed the veins are drained of blood and the solution is injected into the system in its stead.

The original experiments were made at Turin and the animals experimented upon were hung up in an even temperature of 61 degrees Fahrenheit and allowed to remain there for two months and a half. Then the creatures were skinned, cut up, and prepared for the scientific revel. Who the devotees were that indulged in the repast is not generally known as yet, but all tests showed that the flesh was tender, exceedingly palatable and in every respect as good as fresh meat, if not superior. It is declared that there need be no time limit to the preservative powers of this exceedingly cheap and simple solution.

INTERNATIONAL LESSON, NOV. 13.

Lesson VII.—World's Temperance Lesson, Matt. 24. 32-51. Golden Text, Matt. 26. 41.

Verse 33. He is nigh—The subject here, according to the translators, is the Son of man, taken from verses 30 and 31. Luke says in the same place "that the kingdom of God is nigh." Though it is impossible to say which is meant by Matthew, the sense is the same, namely, that when the crisis of the world, typified by the budding forth of the leaves of the fig tree, has arrived, there will be plenty of signs which cannot be mistaken.

34. This generation—The only possible way of interpreting this is to say that Jesus was speaking of the generation of people then living. Hence, the reference in all these things is to the destruction of Jerusalem and the accompanying terrors. Doubtless the disciples believed him to be speaking of the end of the world, which they understood was to follow closely upon the collapse of the temple. It was the common belief of the early Christians and clearly influenced the form in which they reported the sayings of Jesus. But there is no word of Jesus by which we can determine the length of time which is to elapse between the fall of the city and the end of the present dispensation. We do know that many then living witnessed "the abomination of desolation" and the terrible judgment upon Jerusalem.

35. Heaven and earth shall pass away—This is a cosmological expression signifying the whole of the created universe. In verse 29, to which these words seem to refer back, a disintegration of sun, moon, and stars is predicted.

My word shall not pass away—There is a permanence about the teaching of Jesus which is found in none of the philosophers. How much, for example, of the Sermon on the Mount has been superseded? What he has to say concerning the future, therefore, must be heeded as a word sure of fulfillment.

36. The day—The day of judgment. The fact that the exact time of this momentous event lies hidden in the secret wisdom of the heavenly Father should make people cautious about dogmatizing. The King James version omits neither the Son, as in the margin. But it is almost certain that our Lord used the words, as they occur in Mark, and if Matthew really intended to omit them, it would be simply because of his well-known unwillingness to allow a confession of weakness or ignorance to stand against his Master. We need not shrink from admitting this confession.

42. Watch therefore: for ye know not on what day your Lord cometh—This is the practical application of the entire lesson. In the days of Noah matters stood about as they have always stood with men, and will stand until the judgment. Their viciousness is not mentioned as the reason for their undoing, but their eating and drinking—their entire absorption in things mundane. Warning had been given them, and there was a certainty about the coming of the flood that is like the inevitableness of the coming of the Son of man. It all happened with frightful suddenness, and they were wholly unprepared. So men, in spite of the solemn warnings of the sure approach of death and judgment, trade upon the uncertainty of the exact day when their Lord cometh, and stand in the field or at the mill oblivious, and in the day of trouble are left to their own destruction. On the other hand, those who, with uninterrupted vigilance, pay heed to the counsel of God shall be taken to a heavenly reward. Notice the frequency with which this lesson was driven home in different ways by Jesus (Matt. 25. 13-15; Mark 13. 33-37; Luke 12. 35-40; and 21. 34-36).

42-51—Two illustrations of the necessity for watchfulness: (1) The coming of the thief at night; (2) the servants at the coming of their lord.

43. He would have watched—It would seem that a man ought to be allowed the boon of rest from watching in the hours of darkness. But not in a place infested with thieves. At any rate, one must provide against the enemy's taking him unawares. There is a sense in which death is a coming of the Son of man, and it will not do for us to think we can gamble away a ourselves that the evil day is indefinitely postponed.

46. Blessed is that servant—A beatitude which is doubtless the basis for the words in Rev. 16. 15. Notice that the question asked in verse 45 is really unanswered. Instead of delineating the character of the wise servant Jesus merely mentions his reward. But it is apparent that the wise servant is just the man whose readiness for his lord to return is evident in his doing exactly as he was bidden (so), giving the others food in due season.

47. Over all that he hath—Compare Matt. 25. 21, 23. Our Lord seems to teach here and elsewhere that there will be degrees of blessedness in the other world.

48. My lord tarrieth—Unlike the master of the house (43), this evil servant (who, by an odd unconventionality of speech, has not before been mentioned) knew beyond doubt that something was going to happen for which he should be prepared; that is, he knew his lord would come back. But he didn't know just when. So, like many men, he acted in utter disregard of the judgment he must face, as if there were to be no such thing.

51. Shall cut him asunder—The punishment, described only in general terms, is to be for this man as unlimited as the reward for the other man. His portion is to be with the hypocrites because, on the appearance of his lord, he planned to assume the role of faithful overseer.

Oh, well, if hubby doesn't like wifey's new fall hat he can pay for another.

A brakeman who had not been long employed was going up a very steep grade on his first run. With unusual difficulty the engineer succeeded in reaching the top. At the station, looking out of his cab, the engineer saw the new brakeman and said with a sigh of relief: "I tell you what, my lad, we had a job to get up here, didn't we?" "We certainly did," said the brakeman, "and if I hadn't put on the brakes we'd have slipped back."

when he was big and strong. So the miner wrote to some people he knew who wanted a bear for an exhibition in the city. The men came way up on the mountainside with a queer team that held a cage, and the miner helped them take the little bear away.

"The men gave fifty dollars for the little fellow, and that was enough money to keep the family through the winter. The children were glad to know that the little friend was to be safe and happy, with enough to eat."

"He was just a little kitty sort of bear, wasn't he?" said Frankie.

"Yes, a baby sort, too," said mother, as she turned out the light.

"I don't mind that kind when the light is out," said Ted, sleepily.—Youth's Companion.

SUNFLOWER GROWING.

Cultivated in Russia to a Large Extent.

The sunflower is grown in Russia to a considerable extent, the amount of seed crushed amounting usually to over half a million tons.

At first the centre of its cultivation was in the Provinces of Tchernigov, Kiev, Poltava and Kharkov, but now the principal cultivation of the plant has moved farther south-east into the Kuban territory and the Province of Stavropol. Much of the seed is eaten by the populace similar to the way Americans use peanuts, being eaten either raw or roasted. The bulk of the seed, however, is pressed for its oil, which finds a ready sale here as a welcome Lenten fare. Since the introduction of improved methods of refining a very palatable oil with a clear and pleasant yellow tint has been produced. The oil is sold here at $10 to $10.75 per 100 pounds. As a rule, it is shipped in ordinary wooden casks, although lately tin canisters have been made as an experiment, and, strange to say, to such parts of the Mediterranean as are famous for their production of olive oil. Possibly the people there find it profitable to export their more valuable oil and to import for their own use surrogate oils. Other than the above-mentioned shipments, very little sunflower seed oil is exported from this district, home demand being either equal or more than equal to the supply. At present there cannot be much of this oil in storage, inasmuch as last season's harvest of seed was almost a failure. Only about 288,000 tons were crushed in all Russia.

Sunflower seed cultivation is much aided here by the fact that it has been found that the stalk of the plant makes fairly good fuel and contains potash, when reduced to ash, of a very good quality, some of which is exported from the port of Novorossisk.

CONTEMPT FOR MONEY.

The Princess of Monaco is noted for her contempt for money. On one occasion, after a burglary had been committed in her apartments, she astounded a magistrate by stating that she never counted her money, and did not know which of her jewels had been stolen, as she never troubled to find out how many she had. "But," said the magistrate in surprise, "how do you manage your financial affairs?" "Oh," replied the princess, "when I go shopping I just fill a bag with money, and buy what I want. That is the end of it."

GERMANY'S WEIRD SHIPS

CREWS ARE QUITE UNNECESSARY NOW.

Vessel Directed, Bells Rang and Guns Fired by Apparatus on Shore.

Great Britain, eager to catch up every story as to Germany's naval programme, again has its eyes turned across the North Sea. For the latest report has it that two Germans—Herr Christopher Wirth, an electrical engineer, and Herr Christopher Beck, a manufacturer—have invented a "crewless" war ship whose engines can be started or stopped and whose helm can be controlled by electrical waves communicated without wires to a receiving apparatus aboard the mysterious vessel by a sending apparatus from shore similar to that utilized in wireless telegraphy. Further, so the report has it, by means of these electrical waves, guns on the crewless vessel can be controlled and fired, while signals can be transmitted either by bells or flashlight, and all these wonders are possible within a radius of eighteen miles from the wireless station which transmits the controlling force.

STORY OF AN EYE-WITNESS.

An eye-witness who has observed exhaustive experiments conducted with a motor boat model on the Dutzendteich, a large expanse of water near Nuremberg, has affirmed the stories of this wonderful method of control.

"I have seen the interesting trial trips of a large unmanned motor boat," said this observer in a statement which has been published in London, "which was controlled and steered from the bank of the lake by means of wireless telegraphy. I also saw guns being fired on board the unmanned vessel, and a bell being rung on the deck, and also flashlight signals being given in the same way with the help of electrical waves. When I first arrived the motor boat Prinz Ludwig was lying motionless in the middle of the lake. No one was on board. Suddenly a gun was fired on the deck, and I saw the screw begin to revolve and drive the boat forward.

STEERED BY STRANGE POWER

"Then I saw the boat follow the zig-zag course, steered by some unseen power. There were ordinary rowing boats on the lake, and when the unmanned vessel approached them she gave the signal by means of a bell to indicate whether she intended to go to port or starboard, and the indicated course was carried out with absolute accuracy. I watched the manoeuvres of the unmanned boat for a whole hour during the daytime and again in the evening, when the signals were not given by means of bells, but by flashlights. At the end of these tests the unmanned vessel was brought to her anchorage by the same unseen forces. These forces were emitted from a sending station on shore to a receiving apparatus on the boat, started and stopped the engine and controlled the helm of the vessel. The will of the man who controls the electrical waves on shore thus exercises absolute command over

HEALTH

SOMETHING ABOUT BURNS.

The severity of burns and scalds depends upon the area of body-surface that has been burned, the situation and the depth of tissue that has been destroyed. For example, a burn covering a limited surface of the leg or arm, although of considerable depth, is often less serious than a larger but more superficial burn of the trunk, head or neck; and this is especially true of children, who are more susceptible than grown persons to the shock which accompanies an extensive burn.

Every one is familiar with the simple redness of the skin produced by a slight burn, and with the blister that follows if the burn be a little more severe. In such slight accidents no tissue is actually destroyed, and no scar results. The redness is caused by congestion of the small blood-vessels of the skin, and the blister by still further congestion, producing a leakage of the fluids of the blood into the upper layers of the skin.

For such slight burns a coating of sweet-oil or vaseline covered with clean cotton-wool is the simplest remedy. It supplies protection from exposure to the air, which is a cardinal principle in the treatment of all burns and scalds.

The blisters may be pricked with a needle—which has been passed through a flame several times to kill all possible germs—and the fluid allowed to escape, but the loose skin should be left in place, as it forms a better protection than any artificial substance.

The most painful form of burn is that which extends only as far as the deeper layers of the skin and scorches the sensitive nerve-endings which are there situated. If the burn penetrates beyond this point, the nerve-endings are destroyed, and the pain is consequently much lessened, but the loss of tissue, is, of course, much greater, healing is slower, and the scar is correspondingly more noticeable.

In giving first aid to one suffering from a severe burn, especially if there is a large surface involved, it is important first to pay attention to the general condition of the patient. Paleness and shivering, a feeble and fluttering pulse, cold extremities, and, perhaps an appearance of stupor, or little signs of suffering, are all indications of a severe shock, which may produce so profound an impression upon the nervous system and vital centers as to prove rapidly fatal unless met with prompt treatment. In such a condition much can be done before medical help arrives by keeping the head low, giving suitable stimulants, wrapping in warm blankets, and applying hot-water bottles to the hands and feet.—Youth's Companion.

HEMORRHAGE OF THE NOSE.

Reaching both hands high over the head, bathing the face with very hot water, placing bits of ice on the back of the neck and compressing the nose frequently between the thumb and finger for several minutes are useful measures in checking nasal hemorrhage. Care should be taken to hold the

DEATH ONLY EMIGRATION

SO SAYS SIR OLIVER LODGE IN A LECTURE.

No Thoughtful Person Can Look On It as Annihilation, He Declares.

"There is no real ending to anything in the universe, nor was there any beginning," said Sir Oliver Lodge in the course of a recent address in London on the subject of incarnation. He declares:

"The death of a body does not convey any assurance of the soul's death. Every physical analogy is against such a superficial notion in nature. We never see things beginning or coming to an end. Change is what we see, not origin or termination.

"Death is a change indeed—a sort of emigration, a wrenching away of the old familiar scenes, a solemn, portentous fact. But it is not annihilation.

"No thoughtful person can believe that he is destined to drop head foremost into vacant nothing and cease to be. Existence is itself a great adventure—a series of them. Some lead placid lives, seek to avoid adventure, but none can altogether escape, none can escape the great adventure—death.

"There are three adventures in life, birth, death and marriage, and comparatively few escape all three."

ABOUT PRE-EXISTENCE.

Sir Oliver's message was that there is some great truth in the idea of pre-existence—not an obvious truth and one easily formulated, but a truth difficult of expression, and not to be identified with reincarnation. Persons living now might not have been individuals before, but they were chips or fragments of a great master mind, of spirit and light. He did not mean to say only that they were parts of the Deity. He meant something more detailed than that. The idea of angels was treated as fanciful and imaginative. It might not be altogether fanciful, he claims.

"We are still barely emerging from the ruthlessness of savage competition. The earth was still full of darkness and cruel habitations but it was our fault and not the fault of nature.

"There was room for everybody in a properly formed universe. Civilized people should be above mere animal distress. Humanity was good enough if it obtained a chance. Real badness was exceptional. There was hope in the air, and the time would come when they would realize that Christ was walking not on the waters of Gennesaret but on the Thames."

CHINA'S HOARD OF GOLD.

Treasure May be Used to Provide a Navy for the Empire.

It is reported that the Chinese Gov-

On the Farm

POULTRY DROPPINGS.

It is a fact that we don't value hen manure on the farm as we should. Poultry manure is specially valuable for the garden, and even a delicate woman can so care for it as to give the best results as a fertilizer, to the benefit of the fowls and the flowers as well. She need not exclaim, as did one well-to-do lady gardener, "All I want for a birthday present is a load of well-rotted manure," but may have a compost heap with feed for flowers and plants in abundance.

To start the heap, make a bed of loam on a well-drained spot, and throw on this the droppings from the poultry yard, carcasses of dead chicks, and refuse animals or vegetable matter, covering such additions with loam. Wash-day suds should be thrown over the mass each week. Two heaps should be in a secluded place on every farm. It takes about a year for a compost heap to be well ripened, and no new substance should be thrown on a ripened heap. Before using, shovel the mass thoroughly from top to bottom. Sufficient loam should always be thrown over the droppings to absorb the odors and retain the fertilizing elements. Fresh droppings should never be used about plants and flowers.

STOCK NOTES.

If you are overworked and forced to neglect some important features of work at this time, make plans for reducing your acreage next year. Fewer acres well tilled may result in barn nearer filled.

Pig pens and stables should be kept sanitary. When not prevented, flies will breed in stables and pig pens, and cause you much trouble. Keep them clean. This will be to the interests of the animal, as well as for the health of the family.

Poor fences cause fence-breaking animals. The barn lot and pasture fences should be substantial and secure against the most active animals. There should be no temptations for fence-breaking. Notice the weak places; and make the needed repairs promptly.

It is well to remember that teams and men can easily be overworked and their efficiency greatly reduced. There is much danger of getting too warm, and of allowing the team to become exhausted, and probably permanently injured. Whatever necessity there may be for work, you cannot afford to risk this. Take care of yourself and treat your team with consideration.

MILK AS A FOOD.

It is not strange that with the world's experience, the value of milk as a food is not yet half understood either among farmers or townspeople! The city or village housewife would scrimp along on a pint of milk a day when she ought to take two or three quarts simply as a food, affording the largest amount of nutriment for the cost involved.

Chemistry declares that a quart of 4 per cent milk contains as much body supporting food as three-fourths of a pound of the best beef.

At the end of these tests the unmanned vessel was brought to her anchorage by the same unseen forces. These forces were emitted from a sending station on shore to a receiving apparatus on the boat, started and stopped the engine and controlled the helm of the vessel. The will of the man who controls the electrical waves on shore thus exercises absolute command over the unmanned vessel."

SCANDAL IN INDIAN ARMY.

Officer Was Dismissed and Colonel Resigned.

A bad case of ragging has occurred in one of the Indian cavalry regiments.

Acting under pressure from the India Office the Indian Government has developed the habit of appointing Babu doctors to native regiments in India. These doctors are drawn from the classes and races which are abominated by the fighting hillmen recruited for the frontier regiments.

One of these doctors was appointed to a regiment of lancers. A subaltern in the regiment on returning from leave in England, found on his first night at mess that a native doctor had been appointed to the regiment and enjoyed, therefore, all the right of a brother officer. The subaltern is alleged to have followed the doctor after mess and entered his room, where he severely ragged him, smashed up the native gentleman's furniture, and assaulted the medico himself. Without a court-martial or enquiry the subaltern was dismissed from the service. The commanding officer has been required to resign, by which he loses £85 a year of his pension.

The fault of the commanding officer seems to have been that he had up before him the subaltern and doctor and induced them to shake hands. The commanding officer's career thus ends after 29 years in the service. The second in command is severely censured for agreeing to the action of his commanding officer in arranging the scandal, and for not reporting it to his military superiors at Simla.

The case has made a great stir in Indian army circles.

WOMAN DISGUISED AS MONK.

Entered a Convent to Be Near Former Sweetheart.

The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Paris Journal states that a woman of great beauty, the Countess Kluzinska, has just been arrested after passing 18 years as a man in the monastery of Solowestsk, where she was known as Brother Arsene.

The countess, who is now about 40 years of age, was the heroine of a much-discussed love affair. A duel fought between her lover and her husband ended fatally for the latter, and the lover, conscience-stricken, retired to the monastery of Solowestsk. The countess, unable to bear the separation, adopted the stratagem mentioned above in order to be near her lover. She gained access to the convent, and for 18 years has lived there unsuspected.

BRAVE.

"Why do you always refer to your wife as the heroine?"

"Well, she's discharged two cooks and a wash woman in the last six months."

HEMORRHAGE OF THE NOSE.

Reaching both hands high over the head, bathing the face with very hot water, placing bits of ice on the back of the neck and compressing the nose frequently between the thumb and finger for several minutes are useful measures in checking nasal hemorrhage. Care should be taken to hold the head erect. Bathing the face with cold water while bending the head forward over a wash-basin often increases the bleeding.

CARE OF THE SICK.

Sick people suffer very much from any awkwardness or roughness on the part of their attendants, and a particularly bad time for them is when the sheets have to be changed.

To do this properly the clean sheets must be ready before the patient is disturbed. The clean under-sheet is rolled up lengthwise, for about half its width. Then the patient is moved to the side of the bed; the soiled sheet is rolled up and pushed under him as far as possible. The roll of the clean sheet is placed close to him, and, by turning him over both rolls, the soiled sheet can be removed and the other spread out.

When the patient can sit up, the sheets may be rolled breathwise and the exchange made from the head instead of the side of the bed.

Simple as this operation seems, it requires some practice, for it must be carried out quickly as well as gently.

IT BITETH.

Pro. 23: 31, 32.

Look not on the wine that invites; Think not of the promise it brings;

For soon, like a serpent, it bites; At last, like an adder, it stings.

Attractive it seems to the eye; It pleasant may be to the taste; But hidden within it there lies

What fails not life's treasures to waste.

It does not in movements that please

Attempt its true nature to show; It brings not enjoyment and ease, But sorrow, contention and woe.

Be loyal to Him who hath said: In all things be brave and look up;

"Look not on the wine that is red Whose color is seen in the cup."

With what is far better employ Your thoughts, and your strength and your time;

And you will have fulness of joy And glimpses of glory sublime.

T. WATSON.

Uniondale, Ont., 1910.

"What's a dilemma?" asked one small boy. "Well," replied the other, "it's something like this: If your father says he'll punish you if you don't let your mother cut your hair, that's a dilemma."

The day before she was to be married the old negro servant came to her mistress and entrusted her savings in her keeping. "Why should I keep it? I thought you were going to be married," said her mistress. "So I is, missus, but do you 'spose I'd keep all dis money in the house wid that strange nigger?"

Navy for the Empire.

It is proposed to select the sons of high Manchu officials attending the Nobles' School at Peking and send them to the naval colleges at Nanking and Tientsin for a preliminary course of study preparatory to a foreign education in the navies of the friendly Powers. It is reported that the Chinese Government has already arranged with the British authorities to train the cadets on board British warships and that permission had been granted by the regent to select 100 students at once.

The absence of competent native officers to train the men for the new navy and command the ships is a factor in the scheme occupying the serious attention of the authorities. Students are now being educated in England, France and Germany, and a request has been made to have the number increased. Whether the naval academies of Europe and America will be as freely opened to China as they were to Japan is problematical for there is a tendency to discontinue such courtesies.

The escapade of a Chinese naval pupil on board the French training ship Borda, who decamped to Belgium with papers stolen from an officer's cabin, has served to intensify the dislike of French officers to the admission of foreign cadets to the training ships. There is a revulsion of feeling in France at least to this system, and the officers are complaining that after educating the Japanese they are now expected to teach the Chinese.

The recent incident of a Chinese military student in Japan who acquired the mobilization plans of the regiment and other valuable information, led to the summary dismissal of all Chinese students from the army, says the Journal of the American Asiatic Association. The order, it appears, was subsequently rescinded.

Of course the all important part of the scheme is to raise the funds. And as already pointed out, every cash of revenue entering Peking has a capacious maw open to receive it. The desperate straits of the Government to raise funds for the navy programme are fully disclosed by the many proposed schemes for this purpose.

But the persistence of the Regent and his advisers in carrying through the scheme, in spite of the apparent lack of sufficient resources and his refusal to accept foreign financial assistance suggest another view of the situation which has not been touched.

While the Government is poor and in financial straits there remains the great wealth of the imperial family to be reckoned with. Overlooked by the allied troops, who ransacked the palace from end to end, the accumulated treasure of years lies untouched in the secret vaults over which the foreign soldiers lit their camp fire, unconscious of the wealth underneath.

The tribute of years to the Empress Dowager and former sovereigns are here hoarded and available for the country's defence. Native reports are to the effect that an investigation by the chief of the imperial household disclosed the fact that the treasure amounted to 19,000,000 taels of gold and 999,000,000 taels of silver, or roughly speaking some $1,000,000,000 gold. This amount of actual treasure is enormous, and it may be greatly exaggerated. But there is every reason to believe that the imperial treasuries people! The city or village housewife would scrimp along on a pint of milk a day when she ought to take two or three quarts simply as a food, affording the largest amount of nutriment for the cost involved.

Chemistry declares that a quart of 4 per cent milk contains as much body supporting food as three-fourths of a pound of the best beefsteak. Compare, then, the cow with the steer as a food producer. A fairly good cow should yield 3,200 quarts. That would be the equivalent of 2,400 pounds of meat. It takes a good steer to produce 400 pounds of growth a year. Compare the yield of food in his case with that of the cow. Yet people will pay 20 to 25 cents a pound for the beefsteak and think they are grossly ill-used if 10 cents a quart for the milk is charged.

WHAT THE COMET DID.

Sufficient time has now elapsed since the passage of Halley's comet between the earth and the sun, on May 18th, for nearly all the special observations to be collected and discussed. While, owing to bad weather or other causes, the tail of the comet was generally invisible at the time of the passage, certain fortunate observers were witnesses of very impossible phenomena. In some places a great streak of light was seen apparently stretching across the entire heavens. Some observers, comparing the phenomena seen before and after the passage, suggest that the earth robbed the comet of several million miles of its tenuous tail when the two bodies were nearest together. A halo seen about the sun and moon after May 18th has been ascribed to fine dust possibly left by the comet in the upper regions of the atmosphere. All efforts to detect special electric phenomena seem to have given negative results. The general opinion appears to be that the earth did not encounter the main tail, but that it may have passed through an outlying portion of it.

IMPOSSIBLE.

In a certain English village there lives a character who was recently employed by a farmer to do odd jobs on a farm. A duck was missed and the farmer suspected Bob of being the guilty party. Calling Bob to him, he remarked:

"Bob, what did you do with the duck you took last night?"

"Me!" said Bob; "I took no duck."

"Oh, but you did," said the farmer, playing the game of bluff. "For I heard it quacking beneath your jacket."

Bob fell into the trap.

"You couldn't have done that, guv'nor," he said, "for I'd cut its bloomin' head off."

treasure must be vast, as the tribute from the provinces, gifts from officials and other perquisites of the throne have been rolling into Peking for years. The money has not been expended on any great public improvements or buildings or diverted into any provincial reform scheme, so it is safe to believe that it exists.

VILLAGE SINKING.

Remarkable Escapes in the Black Country, England.

During the past few weeks there has been a recurrence of subsidences or "crownings-in" at Quarry Bank, one of the most desolate villages in the Black Country, England. It is in a district which has suffered greatly from subsidences caused by mining operations. The area principally affected is that known as Hammer Bank, near the dismantled Cradley Forge Ironworks, and in many instances the tenants have had to quit their houses in haste. Damage is most apparent at the Wagon and Horses public-house. Here the plaster has fallen from the ceilings, the window frames are being displaced, and the stonework is being dislodged and the front elevation, although the building has been bound with iron bands, is considerably out of the perpendicular. The whole back wall of one building collapse while the daughter of the occupant sat in the kitchen, but fortunately the masonry fell outward. The front of another house, a few yards off, split from top to bottom, and the occupants had to beat a hurried retreat. In a third instance a washhouse parted from the main building, and while the wife of the occupant was digging potatoes in the garden a landslip occurred within a yard of her feet and rocks were exposed beneath. Another dwelling-house seems to be fast falling to pieces, for in the brickwork of the washhouse there are cracks several inches wide, but wooden props have been erected against the back of the house to hold it together. In one corner of the house there is a subsidence of a foot and the garden ground outside has sunk about eighteen inches. The water mains along Forge lane have received constant attention, and the ground appears to be moving in the direction of the valley along which runs the Mouse Sweet Brook, a tributary of the Stour. The brook has had its bed dropped two or three feet in places, and the masonry of a bridge over the main road leading to Cradley Heath is much broken.

As high as we have mounted in debt.
In our defection do we sink as

What Other Papers Say.

Toronto Globe.

Mr. Bourassa's mistake seems to be that he regards the voice of Drummond-Arthabaska as the voice of Canada. He should take a run through Ontario and the West, and then go down to the Provinces by the sea.

Exchange.

Isn't it just a little early for The News to send out invitations for the political funeral of Sir Wilfrid? The obsequies of Mr. Monk, in which The News acts as undertaker, were not highly successful.

Peterboro Examiner.

The proposal that the fees of doctors be increased may be something in the form of killing the goose that lays the golden eggs. The present popular tendency to fly to the use of quack medicines stands to be intensified.

Kingston Whig.

"Served him right," sneers Mr. Foster, of resurrection fame, in Toronto. Just what some people, and conservatives too, said of Foster when the jury in the Globe libel suit, gave him a swat that sent him to the political hospital for a year.

Quebec Chronicle. (Conservative.)

Beginning with November and continuing until March, every immigrant entering Canada must have in his possession a minimum of $50, as compared with the $25 required in summer, unless he be going to an assisted position as a farm laborer. The regulation is a wise one, as the winter is a bad time for a newcomer to start in and look for work. The increase is as much in his own interest as in that of the country.

Hamilton Times.

The high-handed action of the Hydro-electric Commission in notifying the city that it will disregard its wishes as to the route of the pole line and to the pumping-house and build it where it pleases, irrespective of the city's rights and interests, is quite in keeping with its attitude toward Hamilton throughout the negotiations, and shows what Hamilton might expect if it were subjected to the tender mercies of such a tyrannical body.

Ministers of religion, who should have good opportunity for judging, state that in prosperous farming communities of Ontario there is a depressing absence of literary interest. Modern comforts are more and more appreciated and acquired, but books are not. By this is meant, we presume, the class of books which would indicate instructed taste. How far the statement would apply to special districts here and there in Ontario it would be impossible to say; but its general

Synopsis of Canadian Northwest Land Regulations.

ANY person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties.—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him or his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price, $3.00 per acre.

Duties.—Must reside six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent and cultivate fifty acres extra).

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties.—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

Montreal Gazette.

Many of the friends of reciprocity in the United States have thought that it would be the means of opening the Canadian market to the product of like industries of their country. The Canadian Government, if it is guided by the plain expressions of public opinion over the great part of Canada, and if it has consideration for the interests entrusted to it, will meet with a straight refusal any proposition looking to reciprocity in the general product of manufacturing industry. This will be discouraging at the start. It will limit seriously the scope of any possible treaty.

Montreal Star.

The class of automobilists who go tearing through the streets in defiance of law and in contempt for the safety of men, women and children need some severe lessons. Six months hard labor is a light enough punishment for reckless automobilism, even without the incidental accompaniment of manslaughter. The next man convicted of such a cowardly, brutal crime as that of Dionne and Kieffer should get ten years at least, if all the Senators, members of Parliament and political wire-pullers in the city beg for clemency. An entirely new class of blackguardism has come in with the cheapening of the automobiles. The Michaud murder is a case in point.

On Time.

By the time a Chinese boy is five years old his mother has got a wife picked out for him, and though he may never see her until he is a young man, he is expected to marry her when he is eighteen. If he doesn't the la wsteps in and wants to know what's the matter. There are no bachelors in China. They must marry or come over to America to do laundry work.

PURIFIED HIS BLOOD

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills
Healed Mr. Wilson's Sores

When the sewers of the body—the bowels, kidneys and skin ducts—get clogged up the blood quickly becomes impure and frequently sores break out over the body. The way to heal them, as Mr. Richard Wilson, who lives near London, Ont., found, is to purify the blood. He writes:

"For some time I had been in a low, depressed condition. My appetite left me and I soon began to suffer from indigestion. Quite a number of small sores and blotches formed all over my skin. I tried medicine for the blood and used many kinds of ointments, but without satisfactory results. What was wanted was a thorough cleansing of the blood, and I looked about in vain for some medicine that would accomplish this.

At last Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills were brought to my notice, and they are one of the most wonderful medicines I have ever known. My blood was purified in a very short time, sores healed up, my indigestion vanished. They always have a place in my home and are looked upon as the family remedy."

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills cleanse the system thoroughly. Sold by all dealers at 25c a box. 6 the foremost champion in Britain of the cause of public health, maintaining that sickness and the death rate can be tremendously reduced by the introduction and rigid enforcement of well-devised laws for the provision of perfect water and drainage systems, the construction and equipment of homes, factories, schools, institutions, etc., on hygienic principles, the inspection of foods, the segregation of the sick, the disposal of the bodies of the dead, etc., etc. To his exertions it is mainly due that statutory provision was made requiring that medical health officers in Great Britain must possess special qualifications in the department of public health and hygiene, special courses being established in all the medical schools to afford doctors this particular training. As a manager of the Metropolitan Asylum Board he has taken a prominent part in dealing with the question of infectious disease treatment in London, and the result has been the establishment of a system which is regarded as a model one throughout the world. With a view of having the London schools placed in a thoroughly hygienic position, the Metropolitan School Board some years ago appointed him first medical adviser to their body, and under his direction the work was carried through with great thoroughness. During his active career Dr. Smith has found time to write several medical books, all regarded as standards.—Family Herald and Weekly Star.

Needs No Lightning Rod.
A building 9,000 feet above sea level should be protected by lightning rods, one thinks, but the astronomical observatory at Mount Etna has not and does not need such protection. The observatory is near the summit of the volcano, and the stream of vapor constantly rising from the crater acts as a natural conductor, draining the electricity out of the clouds, so that lightning is seldom seen there.

Put His Foot Down.
"What we must do," thundered the politician, walking rapidly down the street beside his bored acquaintance—"what we Englishmen must do is to put our foot down firmly on these foreign imports." And, to show that he could practice as well as preach, at that moment he put his foot down on the skin of an imported banana. And his friend walked on alone.

HATES MODERN WEDDINGS.

Prof. William Robert Smith Criticizes Present Day Customs.
British and United States publications, not merely the society sheets and women's magazines, but some of the great daily newspapers have been devoting columns of space to the discussion of a pronouncement of Prof. William Robert Smith, M.D., F.R.S., against the giving and taking of wedding presents on the ground that the practice is immoral as tending to extravagance, to sycephaney, to waste and to imposition. Some publications, which have resented this structure upon a practice which has developed rapidly of recent years, have attacked the critic as "an impossible crank probably more at home among the musty tomes of his antiquated library than he would be in modern society." As a matter of fact, the learned "Professor" is, besides being one of the most up-to-date medical practitioners in London, considerable of a lion in the highest professional social set in the world's metropolis, having a splendid city home in fashionable Bloomsbury square, as well as a country place at Plumstead, in Kent. He is member of four of the most fashionable and smart clubs—the Carlton, the Royal Societies', the Savage and the Pilgrims. He comes by his title of "Professor" as the occupant of the chair of Forensic Medicine at King's College, London, and was educated at Aberdeen and Edinburgh Universities, taking the degrees of M.D. at the former and D.Sc. at the latter. Besides being a physician he is a barrister.

Sailors' Trousers.

Sailors' trousers are probably the strangest that are to be found in use by any class of men in the world. The gradual increase in size between the knee and the ankle produces a strange flaring out effect that seems inexplicable, yet there is a very good reason for the apparently superfluous cloth that flaps about the shoe at every step.

In the old days when many harbors were unapproachable by large vessels goods had to be transferred in small boats driven shoreward by the sturdy arms of the ship's crew. The beaches upon which they landed were often shallow, and it became necessary for the sailors to step out into the water and drag the boats up on the shore. Their trousers became very wet indeed as a result. Close-fitting trousers, after drying, were apt to shrink and impede the free movements of the wearer. Moreover, in their wet state they clung to the limbs in a very clammy and disagreeable fashion. But wide-bottomed trousers can very easily be rolled up above the knee; hence the sailors' trousers as we know them to-day.

Hennequin's Infant Tablets

Save Babies' Lives. For Babies and Small Children. (Made in France.)

Dr. Hennequin's Infant Tablets saved our little girl's life. Three doctors said she could not live. The Tablets cured her. — Mrs. E. R. McBRIDE, Napanee, Ont.

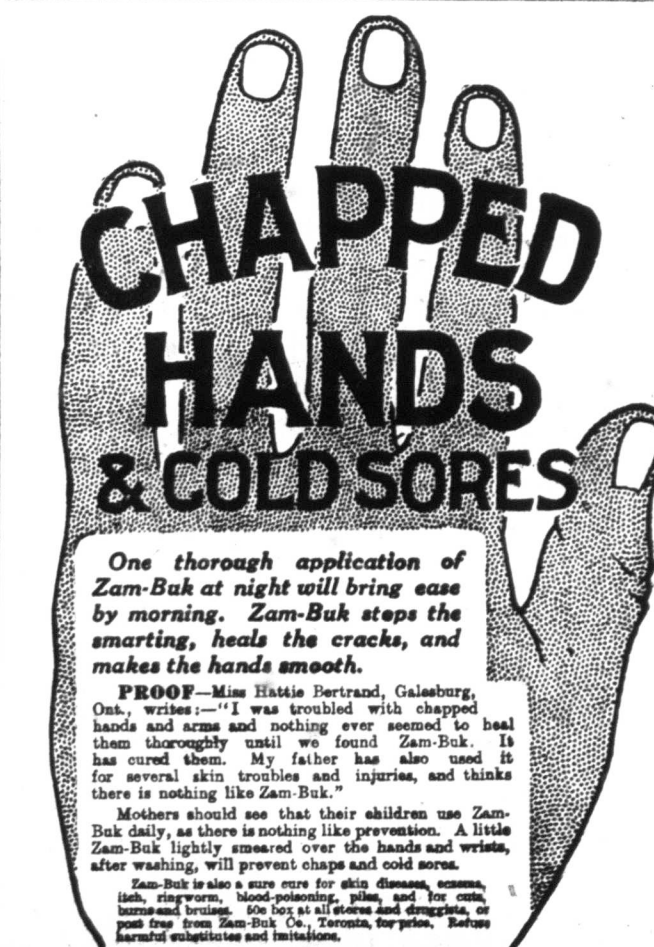

My baby was so weak from sickness that he could hardly walk. We thought he would die. We could find nothing to help him. I was given a sample package of three Hennequin Tablets; we used them; I saw a change at once. We secured the Tablets and our baby improved every day, and is now a bright, fat, good natured boy. You could not believe he was the same child. They certainly cured my baby and saved his life. I believe them to be the best medicine ever sold for babies. Mothers if your babies are not well take my advice and try these Tablets. — Mrs. JAMES RIDGELY, Harrydale, Ont.

We have hundreds of such letters. If the Tablets were not what you need we would not offer to give them away and prepay them. If your baby is not well send for trial package. Alf Bennett was sitting at his desk making up copy for the Chicago Times when the postman entered and carelessly tossed him a letter. Alf was somewhat new to the business, and his shabby suit and rusty shoes gave evidence that his checks, "like angels' visits," were few and far between. Yet in spite of this there was an open, honest expression on the man's face that inspired confidence.

He picked up the letter, tore it open and began reading:

Los Angeles, Cal., June 20, '01.
Dear Nephew—When you read this I shall be in my grave. My Arizona mines have brought me considerable wealth, and my lawyer will inform you that I have made you my heir, but on one condition—that you marry May Grayson, daughter of the man who gave his life to save mine when the Indians attacked the camp twelve years ago.

May is heart free as yet, and I have reason to believe you are the same.

My lawyer, F. B. Goodfriend, will arrange for you to meet her. Inclosed is a check for $100. Come to California immediately. Your uncle,

DANIEL T. ROCKWELL.

"Hang it!" he ejaculated as he surveyed the situation. "I'd like to know how it would seem to be a rich man. Of course anybody would. But why didn't he marry some nice woman himself and have a family of his own to leave his money to? That would have left me out entirely. But—oh, plague take that condition!"

Thinking there might be, after all, some modifying clause in the will whereby this annoying feature could be avoided, he arrayed himself in a new suit, bought his ticket and left Chicago by an early train.

Arrived in Los Angeles, he immediately sought the office of F. B. Goodfriend and introduced himself as Alfred D. Bennett of Chicago, nephew of the late Daniel T. Rockwell.

"Glad to meet you, Mr. Bennett! Take a seat, and we will talk matters over."

"There is one feature of my uncle's will that gives me a good deal of an-

The lawyer laughed till his fat sides shook. "Why, that's the best part of the whole will!"

"The worst part, you mean," said Alf desperately. "But isn't there any modifying clause? There surely must be."

"No, there is none until you have tried and failed to woo and win the lady of your uncle's choice."

"I don't suppose the young lady likes the situation any better than I do."

"I don't know that she does, but Miss Grayson had a daughter's love for your late uncle and humored all his vagaries," returned the lawyer, trying to hide his amusement at the young man's irritation.

"Look here, Bennett. Come and sit down and we'll talk business. I admit, if you please, the singularity of the condition, though it seems more unaccountable to you than to me. But you would like the money your uncle has left? Now, frankly, wouldn't you?"

"Of course I would."

"That's honest, and I respect you for the admission. Now, listen. You have never met the girl. Who knows but an acquaintance may prove satisfactory to both? At any rate, you two must meet. The will specifies that. Miss Grayson is spending the summer with her aunt, who owns a large olive orchard about sixty miles from the city. I am an old friend of the family. Leave it all to me and I'll arrange a meeting. You can then tell whether the condition is entirely obnoxious or not. What do you say, young man?"

"I'll do as you advise," replied Alf, who, having cooled off, was making an effort to view the affair in a business light. "It won't do any harm to see the girl."

Three weeks later Bennett took the morning express out of the city, bound for the little station sixty miles distant. Arriving there, he was disappointed to find no conveyance awaiting him and was just starting for the little hotel, the only one that the place could boast, when a buggy came rapidly up to the station platform and stopped.

The agent hurried out to meet the driver, who was a slender young girl, beautiful as a wild rose, with full dark eyes and a wealth of hair that seemed to reflect the warm sunshine.

"Did Mr. Bennett come on the train, do you know?" she inquired in a sweet, clear voice. "Mrs. Grayson sent me to meet her guest."

"I am Mr. Bennett," said the traveler, stepping forward and lifting his hat to the fair driver.

"I have come to drive you to Mr.

strangers," she replied.

"Too bad I have put you to the trouble of coming so far, though," said the young man, stealing a sidewise glance at the lovely face so close to his own.

"I don't mind the drive at all. Besides, I was almost obliged to come," she admitted with charming frankness. "I hope you are going to enjoy your visit, Mr. Bennett. I know mamma and May will do all they can to make your stay pleasant."

"So you are Miss Grayson also? I didn't know there were two Miss Graysons."

"Yes, two May Graysons. But I am commonly called Mazie to distinguish me from my more dignified Cousin May."

Two May Graysons! It was strange that Lawyer Goodfriend had not mentioned that fact to him before he came. "Mazie! She is a perfect little bundle of sweet mystery," thought Alf. "If the May Grayson referred to in the will is but half as bright and winsome as this girl by my side I won't find it such a hard matter to live up to that condition after all. And yet I don't know that I really want to live up to it now that I have seen Mazie."

Mr. Alfred Bennett found a very cordial welcome awaiting him at the pleasant home of Mrs. Grayson. May Grayson—the May—was a nice looking, stately girl of twenty-one, with a beautiful crown of nut brown hair and clear, expressive gray eyes. She was bright and intelligent, and he was forced to admit after an hour spent in her company that there was nothing of the mining camp style in her manners. He liked her very well, too, and might have fallen in love with her if he had not met Mazie first. Bright, merry Mazie! She charmed him more and more as days and weeks went by. And yet she studied to avoid him in every possible way, and she succeeded almost always in forcing him into the company of her cousin, thus escaping any marked attention he might wish to pay to herself.

But this scheming on her part did not lead young Bennett to bestow any warmer affection on Miss May. Ere long he made the discovery that his life would be an intolerable failure if he was obliged to live it without Mazie. The struggle between this love and the desire to gain possession of his deceased uncle's wealth was over, and as he arose one morning he announced to himself.

"May Grayson may have half the money and the orphan asylum the other half for all I care! I'll be true to ing her 'mamma,' is the true May Grayson referred to in your uncle's will."

One month later the "annoying condition" in the will was complied with.

PANIC IN SHIPWRECK.

When Men Lose Their Wits and Their Manhood as Well.

What has most struck me in my many experiences of shipwreck has been the strangely diverse ways in which the passengers acquit themselves under intense excitement and panic," said a lifeboatman to the writer.

Women cry, faint and cling to each other, but are least trouble. Men often act very strangely. I remember one man throwing into the lifeboat a heavy trunk which he wanted to save, but which we promptly heaved overboard.

Some men become quite panic stricken. I've seen strong men, probably brave enough in other cases, fighting fiercely for the lifebuoys and thrusting the women and children aside in frantic endeavors to leap into the boat first; yet strangely enough, one man who thus disgraced himself has since obtained the Royal Humane Society's medal for saving life at sea, thrice volunteering with a scratch crew in aid of a distressed vessel.

I've known others who became so stupefied with fright as to resist all attempts at rescuing them, begging to be left to die and having to be forcibly thrown into the lifeboat. Some persons frequently become half demented, and I've known several cases where they have in a frenzy committed suicide by positively jumping headlong into the sea and drowning themselves, and one man, to insure his sinking, filled his pockets with coal.

Some years ago another passenger, hearing the ship had struck, went and drowned himself in the bathroom, anticipating his fate, as it were.

I remember another case where a passenger hanged himself in his cabin just as the lifeboat arrived.

LONDON WEDDING FASHIONS.

The Abandonment of Some Old-Time
Social Customs.

The first weddings of the autumn season in London make it clear that the brides of the autumn are going to emulate those of the summer and springtime by introducing into their toilettes and those of their bridesmaids a note of novelty.

At the wedding of Miss Carissima Blood recently the bridesmaids were clad in radiant Indian coats and robes and wore pink and white turbans. The effect was oriental and novel. At another wedding a couple of little boys bore the train of the bride. The children were dressed in sailor suits of white duck and were unaccompanied by any bridesmaids.

The average modern bride is proud of proving herself free from the trammels of convention. At one time the wearing of black at a wedding, even by a guest, would have been considered unlucky. Nowadays it is a common occurrence to see bridesmaids wearing black hats and by no means an uncommon one for the bride herself to wear black millinery.

One recent bride ordered a faint blush pink satin background for her filmy ivory lace toilet, and another was bold enough to sanction the addition of green embroideries to her wedding robe—bold because green has ever been held in sinister repute in connection with a wedding gown.

The fashion of veiling the face, at one time universally observed except in the case of royalty, is being abandoned.

"Glad to meet you, Mr. Bennett! Take a seat, and we will talk matters over."

"There is one feature of my uncle's will that gives me a good deal of annoyance," remarked the young man, seating himself near the lawyer.

"Which one is that?"

"The one obliging me to marry a girl I have never seen. It is perfectly ridiculous!"

"Did Mr. Bennett come on the train, do you know?" she inquired in a sweet, clear voice. "Mrs. Grayson sent me to meet her guest."

"I am Mr. Bennett," said the traveler, stepping forward and lifting his hat to the fair driver.

"I have come to drive you to Mrs. Grayson's," returned the girl.

"Thank you." And he sprang in lightly and seated himself by her side.

"Do you wish me to take the reins?" he asked.

"May Grayson may have half the money and the orphan asylum the other half for all I care! I'll be true to the love that has crept into my heart. I'll marry Mazie if I can win her. With her by my side I shall be brave and strong enough to earn my own wealth."

Having thus decided in his own mind, the young man set out for a stroll through the pretty little meadow. Suddenly he came upon a tiny figure in white. "Out for a morning constitutional, Mr. Bennett?" she inquired. "It is an ideal morning, as Cousin May would say."

"You are always thrusting 'Cousin May' at me," Alf returned, with some slight irritation. "But it is you I wish to speak with this 'ideal morning.' I am going to leave tonight, and I must say something to you before I go."

"We'd be sorry to have you leave us with anything burdening your mind, Mr. Bennett."

"You know, I suppose, why I came here?"

"I believe so," she said.

"Well, I want to inform you that the condition in my uncle's will can never be complied with now."

"Is that so?" came from her lips in feigned surprise. "It will be such a pity for you to lose the fortune."

"Yes, but I have learned that there is something better than riches. It is love, Mazie, I cannot begin to tell you how tenderly I love you. I want you to be my wife."

"What! After all the attentions you have been showing Cousin May?"

"You are responsible for those 'attentions.' How else could it be when you persisted in throwing us together so often?"

"I think you are very fickle."

"No; I am very constant. I haven't ceased loving you a single minute since I first saw you. Can't you love me just a little, Mazie?"

"I'm afraid not."

"Won't you try to love me, dearest?"

"I don't need to try, Alf," she replied, looking up into his face with a shy smile.

"You sweet deceiver!" he cried, catching her in his arms and pressing her to his heart. "You were fooling me all the time."

"Yes, for, much as I was growing to love you, I resolved not to let you know," she said, freeing herself from his arms, "because, you see—Oh, there is Mr. Goodfriend!" she cried, rushing forward to greet the lawyer, who had come unannounced.

"Oh, I saw it all, children," he said, shaking hands first with Mazie, then with Alf. "I didn't cover my eyes. I came unexpectedly on the night express and got here in time for breakfast. Mrs. Grayson told me I'd find you both down by the meadow. I arrived in time to see that you two have come to an understanding."

"Yes, sir," said Alf decidedly. "I've concluded to enjoy love in a cottage with Mazie rather than take Miss Grayson with all my uncle's money."

"Love in a cottage! Oh, the refreshing youth!" And Goodfriend broke into a hearty laugh, in which Mazie could not help joining. "Pardon me, Bennett," said the lawyer, wiping the mirth shed tears from his eyes, "but you are the victim of your own blunder."

"Blunder? I don't understand you, sir," said Alf.

"Of course not!" And the lawyer went off into another convulsion of laughter. "This sprit, whom you took to be the daughter of Mrs. Grayson because of a pet way she has of calling ever been held in sinister repute in connection with a wedding gown."

The fashion of veiling the face, at one time universally observed except in the case of royalty, is being abandoned.

Missed Them Well.

There are always two ways of telling the truth. The man who told the king that he would outlive all his subjects understood human nature far more than the man who was put to death for declaring to the same monarch that all his subjects would die before him. The gamekeeper in Francis Pippin's "Odds and Ends" also had the gift of presenting the pleasantest side of a fact.

A certain noble lord was a very bad shot. One day, after a particularly discouraging exhibition of his bungling, he said to the keeper:

"Now, my man, tell me the truth. Did you ever see any one who shot as badly as I do?"

"Oh, yes, my lord," returned the keeper. "I've seen worse shots than your lordship. Your lordship misses the birds so clean."

Too Late.

After the guests had waited for half an hour in a Berkshire church for the bride to arrive messengers were dispatched to the livery stable to try to discover what had happened. The liveryman, made to understand that he had omitted to send a carriage to her house, acknowledged that all the blame rested on him and apologized in manly fashion, but when they suggested that he should proceed to remedy the delay he failed to see their point.

"What'll be the use o' fetchin' 'er now?" he argued. The service 'll be 'art over."—London Globe.

OWES HER LIFE TO

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Vienna, W. Va. — "I feel that I owe the last ten years of my life to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

Eleven years ago I was a walking shadow. I had been under the doctor's care but got no relief. My husband persuaded me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it worked like a charm. It relieved all my pains and misery. I advise all suffering women to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound." — Mrs. EMMA WHEATON, Vienna, W. Va.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases of any similar medicine in the country, and thousands of voluntary testimonials are on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., from women who have been cured from almost every form of female complaints, inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration. Every such suffering woman owes it to herself to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

If you would like special advice about your case write a confidential letter to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

BEFORE TREATMENT

He was surprised at how the sores healed. "I took your New Method Treatment for a serious blood disease with which I had been afflicted for twelve years. I had consulted a score of physicians taken all kinds of blood medicine, visited Hot Springs and other mineral water resorts, but only got temporary relief. They would help me for a time, but after discontinuing the medicines the symptoms would break out again—running sores, blotches, rheumatic pains, looseness of the hair, swellings of the glands, palms of the hands scaling, itchiness of the skin, dyspeptic stomach, etc. I had given up in despair when a friend advised me to consult you, as you had cured him of a similar disease 8 years ago. I had no hope, but took his advice. In three weeks' time the sores commenced to heal up and I became encouraged. I continued the New Method Treatment for four months and at the end of that time every symptom had disappeared. I was cured 7 years ago and no signs of any disease since. My boy, three years old, is sound and healthy. I certainly can recommend your treatment with all my heart. You can refer any person to me privately, but you can use this testimonial as you wish."

THE HINDU FOOT.

Its Formation Makes It Almost as Useful as a Hand.

Hindus possess a curious ability to use their feet and toes in various industrial occupations. In the native quarters of many Indian towns may be seen the strange spectacle of a butcher seizing a piece of meat in his hands and cutting it in two with a stroke of his knife held between the first and second toes of his foot. The shoemaker uses no last, but turns the unfinished shoe with his feet while his hands are busy in shaping it. So the carpenter holds with his great toe the board he is cutting, and the woodturner handles his tools as well with his toes as with his fingers.

This use of the feet to assist the hands in their labor is not, however, the mere result of practice, but, as the investigations of French scientists prove, is principally due to the fact that the Hindu foot is quite different from ours in its anatomical conformation.

The ankle of the Hindu and the articulation of the back of the foot permit considerable lateral motion. Then the toes possess a surprising mobility. The great toe can be moved freely in all directions, and the first and second toes are separated by a wide space, sometimes as much as five-eighths of an inch across at the base of the toes and two inches at their extremities.

The articulation of the hip is also peculiar, and this renders it easier to use the toes in handling objects by enabling the Hindu to sit in a squatting posture much more comfortably than we can.

A similar formation of the feet and toes is found among the Annamese, but it is not, as might be supposed, a common thing among barbarous and savage tribes. It is not found, for instance, in the South American Indian, the negro, the Fuegian or the Arab.

One naturally thinks of the resemblance to a monkey which a human being using both hands and feet in the manner described above must present, and yet the French investigators are careful to point out the fact that the Hindu foot is not at all like the foot of an ape or a monkey. The great toes are not opposed to the other toes like a thumb, as occurs with the monkey, and accordingly the pedal dexterity of the Hindus is not to be taken as an indication of simian descent.

Ambergris.

Formerly there was much mystery surrounding the origin of ambergris, that most valuable substance, but now it is pretty generally agreed that it is nothing more or less than a "morbidity secretion" due to a disease of the liver of the sperm whale. The whales which yield ambergris are invariably sickly and emaciated animals.

In ancient times this substance was known as "amber," a name also applied subsequently to the fossil gum now commonly so called. In order to distinguish between the two one was called amber gris (gray) and the other amber jaune (yellow). So, we perceive, the word "ambergris" means simply gray amber. As in the case of the fossil gum, pieces of it were found from time to time on the shores of the sea, where they had been cast up by the waves.

How Tennyson Decided a Matter.

Here is Tennyson's own account to Mr. James Knowles, editor of The Nineteenth Century, of how he was offered and accepted the laureateship: "The night before I was asked to take the laureateship, which was offered to me through Prince Albert's liking for my 'In Memoriam,' I dreamed he came to me and kissed me on the cheek. I said in my dream, 'Very kind, but very German.' In the morning the letter about the laureateship was brought to me and laid upon my bed. I thought about it through the day, but could not make up my mind whether to take it or refuse it, and at the last

GREATEST CURE FOR RHEUMATISM IS "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

"I Honestly Believe It," says Mr. Mills

Knowlton, P.Q., Oct. 12th, 1909.

For many years I suffered from severe Rheumatism and the attacks were very distressing and prevented me from doing my ordinary work.

I tried many remedies and physicians' treatments but nothing seemed to do me much good, and I was becoming very anxious for fear I would become a permanent cripple from Rheumatism.

I tried "Fruit-a-tives" and this medicine has entirely cured me, and I honestly believe that "Fruit-a-tives" is the greatest Rheumatism Cure in the world.

E. E. MILLS, Asst. P.M., Knowlton, Que.

"Fruit-a-tives" not only strengthens and heals the kidneys—but also regulates the bowels, improves the action of the skin—and thus keeps the blood pure and rich and free from uric acid which causes Rheumatism.

"Fruit-a-tives"—the great fruit medicine—is sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50; trial size, 25c; or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

A. O. U. W.

On Thursday evening, Oct. 20th, Messrs. D. J. Pollard, A. W. Allison, A. A. Armstrong, J. Humphrey and Rev. Canon Roberts, representatives of the Adolphustown Lodge, A. O. U. W., waited on Mr. and Mrs. John Pollard and presented them with a cheque for $2,000 in the following terms:

Dear Friends.—We, the representatives of Adolphustown Lodge, No. 295, A. O. U. W., have assembled here for the purpose of discharging to the parents of our deceased brother, Wm. A. Pollard, the duty committed to us by the Constitution of our Order of giving into your hands the sum of money which our deceased brother has so prudently and lovingly secured to you by paying monthly small sums into our Lodge during the past sixteen years. We have all gladly contributed to this result, for ours is a fraternal Order, and our monthly contributions have continually been going for the fatherless, the widow and the bereaved ones. We give gladly for the benefit of the dear ones of our brethren as well as for that of our own. Our benevolence goes out towards those who are, or have been, dear to our brethren, and so we are pleased to extend our benefactions to them to help to bear their burdens, so fulfilling the law of Christ. And now we have the very greatest pleasure in handing you this cheque for $2,000, the result of our late brother's prudent resolve to enter our Brotherhood, and his sixteen years' wise continuance therein. How prudent was that resolve and how wise was that continuance may easily be seen when we compare the $362.44 which our brother paid into the Grand Lodge with the goodly sum which we are now pleased to place in your hands. We trust that this $2,000 May be so carefully managed that it may materially minister to your comfort and happiness through all your remaining days, and that you may ever have a kindly, grateful thought of and a word of commendation and blessing for that fraternal society which for forty-two years has been doing such beneficent work, and ministering such help and comfort to the needy, the Ancient Order of United Workmen.

In reply, Miss E. Pollard, on behalf of her parents, read the following:—

Dear Friends of the A. O. U. W.—We thank you very heartily for the kind words used in conveying to us the cheque for $2,000, the amount for which our son, William, was insured in your Order. We are grateful indeed that his thoughtfulness and care have made such provision for us in our last days, and we wish for the A. O. U. W., God speed.

John and Emma Pollard.

DOCTORS FAILED. RESTORED BY PERUNA.

Catarrh of the Lungs

Threatened Her Life.

Miss Ninette Porter, Brantree, Vermont, writes: "I have been cured by Peruna."

"I had several hemorrhages of the lungs. The doctors did not help me much and would never have cured me."

"I saw a testimonial in a Peruna almanac of a case similar to mine, and I commenced using it."

"I was not able to wait on myself when I began using it. I gained very slowly at first, but I could see that it was helping me."

"After I had taken it a while I commenced to raise up a stringy, sticky substance from my lungs. This grew less and less in quantity as I continued the treatment."

"I grew more fleshy than I had been for a long time, and now I call myself well."

DESERONTO.

Nov. 5.—At the family residence, St. George street, on Wednesday morning there passed away a bright young life, Lawrence John Knox, aged fourteen years, second son of Mr. and Mrs. James Knox, after an illness of one week duration. He is survived by his parents, one sister, Miss Florence and one brother of the Bank of Toronto, Gault. The funeral was held at their residence on Friday afternoon, the service being conducted by Rev. J. Shaver, of Picton, after which the remains were taken to Deseronto cemetery vault. The floral tributes were rare and beautiful, from sympathizing friends, including a wreath from his school class, and boy scouts of which he was a member, and they following their young comrade's remains to their resting place.

On Wednesday morning at the home of his sister, Mrs. George Toppings, there passed away Richard De. C. Marrigan, of Port Arthur, aged forty years, youngest son of the late John Marrigan, he having come to Deseronto about two weeks ago to see if the change would benefit his health.

Heart failure was the cause of death. He is survived by his widow, two sisters, Mrs. Richard Baxter, and Mrs. George Toppings, of Deseronto, three brothers, Messrs Michael and John, of Deseronto and William of Port Arthur. The funeral took place on Friday morning to the Vincent de Paul church, where Rev. Father J. P. Hartigan said requiem high mass.

Deceased held a responsible position with the Rathbun company, leaving to accept one as assistant manager with M. J. Hogan, government contractor. The remains were placed in Deseronto cemetery vault. Among the floral tributes was a pillow from Knights of Columbus Deseronto.

The Knights of Columbus, Port Arthur held memorial requiem mass. John Hogan, of Port Colborne, William Marrigan, of Port Arthur, Mr. and Mrs. F. Gorman, of Belleville, attended the funeral.

On Wednesday morning at her home, after an lingering illness of typhoid pneumonia since June, death came to Eveline Gertrude Post, aged twenty-one years, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Post, of Rochester formerly of Deseronto. In September they brought her here to benefit her health, but she gradually grew worse.

She is survived by her parents, three sisters Mrs. E. Gravell, Misses Pearl and Maud, and one brother, Master Harold of Rochester, N. Y. The funeral was held at the Methodist church, by Rev. G. H. Copeland, on Saturday afternoon. The remains were placed in Deseronto cemetery vault.

On Friday morning word was received from Ottawa that Mrs. Thomas Hart had passed away, she having gone about two weeks ago to hospital for treatment. The remains arrived here and were taken to family residence, corner of Thomas and College streets. She is survived by her husband, two daughters, Misses Grace and Kathleen and one son Edward Hart, of Ottawa.

On Wednesday, Mrs. Patrick Berry passed away, with friends on Dundas Road. She was known by everyone, having resided in Deseronto for a number of years and made her home of late years at House of Providence, Kingston.

The steamer Port came in on Friday with several passengers and cargo.

the laureateship, which was offered to me through Prince Albert's liking for my 'In Memoriam.' I dreamed he came to me and kissed me on the cheek. I said in my dream, 'Very kind, but very German.' In the morning the letter about the laureateship was brought to me and laid upon my bed. I thought about it through the day, but could not make up my mind whether to take it or refuse it, and at the last I wrote two letters, one accepting and one declining, and threw them on the table and settled to decide which I would send after my dinner and bottle of port."

Knives, Forks and Spoons.

Our ancestors ate with their fingers until 1563, save for such aid as each man's weapon of defense lent him in cutting his meat. Then table knives came in, and for a long time a bit of wood was laid at the plate to hold the fork while it was being cut. Forks did not come in till 1611, introduced from Italy, the land of culture and refinement. So late as 1680 knives, forks and spoons were so scarce that in the farmer class each guest was expected to bring his own. The farmer and his wife sat with the servants at the table; the children squatted on the floor with the cats, dogs and fowls. The servants ate from a wooden bowl, the masters from a pewter plate, for crockery and glass were unknown.

Origin of Spoons.

Two natural objects seem to have furnished the model for the spoon to primitive man—the river or sea shell and the leaf of plants. In southern China shell spoons are still used that are closely reproduced in the familiar porcelain spoon of that country, while metal spoons are found in India on which are reproduced even the veins of the leaves from which they were copied.

Family Pride.

Mrs. F. was doing her best to amuse and entertain her strenuous five-year-old grandson and namesake, Ford, being in turn every animal which his fancy dictated. Finally, after unusual exertion, she asked, "Does your Grandma M. play with you this way?"

Drawing himself up proudly, Ford replied, "I'd have you know, my Gran'me M. is a perfect lady!"

The Clove Tree.

The limbs of the clove tree being very brittle, a peculiar four-sided ladder is used in stripping the tree. As fast as the buds are collected they are spread in the sun until they assume a brownish color, when they are put in the storehouse ready for market.

Accidental Discharge of a Pun.

A capital pun may arise by pure accident, as recorded in Bucke's "Book of Table Talk": "A Mr. Alexander Gun was dismissed from a post in the customs of Edinburgh for circulating some false rumor. The dismissal is said to have been thus noted in the customs book at the time, 'A. Gun dismissed for making a false report.'"

Not Guilty.

"Is your husband a bibliomaniac?" asked Mrs. Oldcastle as she was being permitted to view the treasures in the library of the new neighbor. "Mercy sakes, no!" replied Mrs. Packenham. "He never bibles a bit. Oh, of course I don't say that he wouldn't take a little at his meals if the rest was down' it, but that's as far as he ever goes in them kind of things."

STORIES AT LESS THAN A CENT A PIECE.

In the fifty-two issues of a year's volume The Youth's Companion prints fully two hundred and fifty stories. The subscription price of the paper to Canada is but $2.00, so that the stories cost less than a cent apiece, without reckoning in all the rest of the contents— anecdotes, humorous sketches, the doctor's weekly article, papers on popular topics by famous men and women.

Although the two hundred and fifty stories cost so little, they are not cheap stories. In variety of scene, diversity of incident, skill and truth in character-depicting, they cannot be excelled.

The Announcement for 1911, beautifully illustrated, giving more detailed particulars of these stories and other new features which greatly enlarge the paper, will be sent to any address in Canada free with sample copies of current issues.

Every new Canada subscriber receives free The Companion's Art Calendar for 1911, lithographed in twelve colors and gold, and if the subscription is received at once, all the issue for the remaining weeks of 1910.

when, having brought his Phonograph to a point where not even the most critical could ask for improvement, he multiplied its entertaining ability by two.

He did this by producing a Phonograph Record that plays, sings or talks twice as long as the Standard Edison Records.

He did this without increasing the size of the Record, making it a Record that can be used on old instruments as well as new.

He did it without affecting in any way the clear, rich, musical tones for which Edison Records have always been famous.

THE SECRET OF HER POWER;

Or, A TRUTH NEVER OLD.

CHAPTER IX.

Gervase saunters into his hostess' outdoor the next morning, availing himself of the privilege accorded to that distant relationship which it leases them both to raise into an intimate courtship. Gervase sits down and makes himself agreeable, and relates to her many little episodes of his recent experiences.

Gervase does not make any confidences; he only tells her things which amuse her and reveal much about her acquaintances: nothing about himself. He smokes some of his favorite cigarettes, praises some new china, suggests an alteration in the arrangements of the parlour, and makes critical discourses upon the collection of snuff boxes.

When he is going away he lingers a moment intently looking at a patch box of vernis Martin, and says, with studied carelessness: "Dolly, tell me, when did you make her acquaintance of Mme. Sabaroff?"

"Last year at Cannes; why do you want to know? She came and dined with us at Orme last Easter. Is she not perfectly charming?"

"Very good looking," says Gervase, absently. "You don't know anything about her, then?"

"Know?" repeats his hostess. "What should I know? What everybody does, I suppose. I met her first at the Duchesse de Luynes. You can't possibly mean that there can be anything—anything—"

"Oh, no," replies Gervase, but it produces on his questioner the same effect as if he had said "Oh, yes."

"How odious men are! such scandal-mongers," says Lady Usk, angrily. "Talk of our damning with faint praise! There is nothing comparable to the way in which a man destroys a woman's reputation just by raising his eyebrows or twisting his mustache."

"I have no mustache to twist, and am sure there is no reputation which I wish to destroy," says her cousin.

"Then why do you ask me where I made her acquaintance?"

"My dear Dolly! Surely the most innocent and general sort of question ever on the lips of any human being!"

"Possibly; not in the way you said it, however; and when one knows that you were a great deal in Russia it suggests five hundred things—five thousand things—and of course one knows he was shot in a duel about her, and I believe people have talked."

"I have never helped them to has one shoulder higher than the other and red eyes."

"There are six millions paid down," replies Mr. Wootton, sentimentally.

"What the deuce will Mr. Downington say?" asks Usk.

"One never announces any marriage," remarks Mr. Wootton, "but there is a universal outcry about what will some lady, married long ago to somebody else, say to it. Curious result of supposed monogamy."

"It is quite disgusting," says Usk. "Some of these new people are presentable, but she isn't; and Coltsfoot is so good-looking and so young."

"It is what the French call an 'alliance tres' comme il faut,'" says Usk, from sheer spirit of contradiction. "The duckdom is as full of holes as an old tin pot; she tinkers it up with her iron and gold; and I bet you that your friend Coltsfoot's gowns so that one shoulder higher than the other will become all the rage next season."

"Of course you set no store on such a simple thing as happiness," says his wife, with acerbity.

"Happiness! Lord, my dear! Happiness was buried with Strephon and Chloe centuries ago! We are amused or bored, we are successful or unsuccessful, we are popular or unpopular, we are somebody or we are nobody, but we are never either happy or miserable."

"People who have a heart are still both!"

"A heart! You mean spoons!"

"What a hideous expression! Strephon and Chloe never used that."

"When we have an unfortunate passion now," remarks Mr. Wootton, "we go to Carlsbad. It's only an affair of the liver."

"Or the nerves," suggests Usk.

"Flirtation is the proper thing; flirtation never hurts anybody; it's like puff paste, seltzer water, and Turkish cigarettes."

"Puff paste may bring on an indigestion when one's too old to eat it."

"There! Didn't I tell you so! She's always saying something about my age. A man is the age that he feels."

"No a woman is the age that she looks. If you will quote things, quote them properly."

"The age that she looks! That's so very variable. She's 20 when she enters a ball-room at midnight; she's 50 when she comes out at sunrise; she's 16 when she goes to meet anybody at Hurlingham; she's 60 when she scolds her maid and has a scene with her husband."

Lady Usk interrupts him, with vi-

It is just as they find it convenient. But Mme. Sabaroff can't have been more than a child when Gervase was in Russia."

Mr. Wootton smiles again significantly.

"She was married."

"To a brute!" cries Dorothy Usk.

"All husbands," says Usk, with a chuckle, "are brutes, and all wives are angels. C'est imprime!"

"I hope no one will ever call me an angel; I should know at once that I was a bore!"

"No danger, my lady; you've no wings on your shoulders, and you've salt on your tongue."

"I'm sure you mean to be odiously rude, but to my taste it's a great compliment."

"My dear Alan," says Dorothy Usk, having got him at a disadvantage in her boudoir one-quarter of an hour after luncheon, "what has there been between you and the Princess Sabaroff? Everybody feels there is something. It is in the air. Indeed, everybody is talking about it. Pray tell me. I am dying to know."

Gervase is silent.

"Everybody in the house is sure of it," continues his hostess.

"They don't say so, of course, but they think so. Nina Curzon, who is mauve language, pretends even that she knows all the circumstances, and it would seem that they are not very nice circumstances. I really cannot consent to go on in the dark any longer."

"Ask the lady," replies Gervase stiffly.

"I certainly shall do nothing so ill-bred. You are a man, you are a relation of mine, and I can say things to you I couldn't possibly say to a stranger, which Mme. Sabaroff is quite to me. If you won't answer, I shall only suppose that you paid court to her and were 'spun,' as the boys say at the examinations."

"Not at all," says Gervase, haughtily.

"Then tell me the story."

He hesitates. "I don't know whether you will think very well of me if I tell you the truth."

"That you may be sure I shall not. No man ever behaves well where women are in the question."

Sundridge man suffering from Gravel, Diabetes and Dropsy finds an Easy and complete Cure.

Sundridge, Ont., Oct. 17. — (Special).—Gravel, Diabetes and Dropsy are a terrible combination for one man to have. It means that his life is in the gravest danger, unless like George Vanhooser, a well-known resident of this place, he finds the simple and natural cure. Here is the story Mr. Vanhooser tells, and all his neighbors know every word of it is true:

"I had pains in my back and across the loins. My stomach would swell. I was constipated and I had sharp cutting pains in my bladder, which made me sure that I was suffering from the terrible Gravel. The doctor attended me, but I kept

NEW CANNING RECIPES.

Apple Orange Marmalade.—One-half peck of apples cut in small pieces (do not peel); add enough water to almost cover apples. Boil until soft and drip through jelly bag. Peel three oranges and with a sharp knife remove the white part of the peel. Then run the oranges and yellow peel through food chopper. Add this to the strained apple liquid and measure before boiling. Put over fire to boil thirty minutes and then add same quantity of sugar as measured liquid, and boil hard five minutes, or until it drops thick from a spoon. This quantity makes about twenty glasses.

Apple Butter.—Apple butter made from apple pulp.—Run the apple pulp through a sieve and add sugar and spices to taste. Boil thirty minutes slowly.

Pumpkin Marmalade.—Take one eight pound pumpkin, cut out the ribs, take out seeds, then pare, then cut in thin slices. After all is pared it will weigh about seven pounds. Place in preserving kettle, add five pounds granulated sugar, four lemons sliced thin, five cents worth ginger root; mix thoroughly; let it stand over night; in the morning place on the stove, let it boil slowly for two hours and one-half, or until the syrup is thick. Put in glass jars when cool.

Ripe Grape Marmalade.—Take as many grapes as desired and skin them. Put the pulps on the stove to boil with enough water to cover. Boil until quite soft. Press them through a colander. Now put back on the stove with one quart of juice to one pint of sugar and the skins that you took off the grapes before. Boil until the desired thickness.

Dill Pickles.—Get large pickles and put in clear cold water overnight. Next morning wash and put the following brine over them: Make a brine strong enough to bear an egg, one glassful of vinegar to one gallon of brine. Put pickles in stone crock. Lay pickles, then dill, and so on, until all are used. Dill on top. Pour brine over all. Cover with plate weighted down with stone.

Sweet Corn Relish.—One dozen ears of corn, cut from cobs; one small head of cabbage, four medium onions, three red peppers. Put this all through food chopper. One quart of vinegar, two tablespoonfuls of salt, one cupful of sugar, one tablespoonful of flour, one tablespoonful of mustard, one teaspoonful of tumeric. Boil all one-half hour and seal in glass jars.

Sweet Pickles.—Soak medium sized green cucumbers in brine for nine days. Then remove and soak in fresh water for twenty-four hours. Cut in halves and scrape out the seeds. Take a large preserving kettle, put in a layer of pickles, then a layer of grape leaves, and lastly a teaspoonful of powdered alum. Continue in this way until all the pickles are used, and then cover with equal parts of vinegar and water and scald until they look clear. Fill each half of cucumber with seeded raisins and thin slices of lemon, tie halves together, and place in an earthen jar. Make a syrup of one quart of vinegar and two pounds of sugar. Tie one ounce of stick cinnamon and half ounce of whole cloves in a sack and boil in the syrup. Pour over pickles. Pour off and reheat for nine mornings. Leave spices in the jar.

"Possibly; not in the way you said it, however; and when one knows that you were a great deal in Russia it suggests five hundred things—five thousand things—and of course one knows he was shot in a duel about her, and I believe people have talked."

"I have never helped them to talk. When do they not talk?"

And beyond this she cannot prevail upon him to go; he pretends that the Princess Sabaroff is beyond all possibility of any approach of calumny, but the protestation produces on her the impression that he could tell her a great deal wholly to the contrary if he chose.

"She certainly was staying with Mme. de Luyne," she insists.

"Whoever said the lady might not stay with the Archbishop of Canterbury?" replies Gervase.

"She is irritated and vexed."

Xenia Sabaroff is her idol of the moment, and if her idol were proved human she would be very angry. She reflects that she will have Dodo and the children from home strictly in the sense of the word, and not let them wander about in the park, as they do now. Her Russian friend most morning.

"One can never be too careful with children of that age," she muses; "and they are terribly evil already."

Dorothy Usk's friendships, though very ardent, are like most friendships which exist in society—they are likely to blow about with every breeze. She is cordial, kind, and in her way sincere; but she is what her husband characterizes as "weathercocky."

"What's the row my lady?" You look ruffled, inquires Usk, coming into her boudoir with a sheet of half-opened letters in his hand.

"There are always things to annoy me," she answers, vaguely.

"It is an arrangement of a prudential Providence to prevent our affections being set on this world," replies Usk, piously.

His wife's only comment on this religious declaration is an impatient twist to the tail of her Maltese dog.

Usk proceeds to turn over to her such letters as bore him—they are formidable by dozens; the two or three which interest him have been read in the gun-room and put away in an inside pocket.

"Mr. Bruce could attend to all these," she says, looking with some disgust at the correspondence Bruce is his secretary.

"He always blunders," says Usk.

"Then change him," says his wife; nevertheless she is pleased at the compliment implied to herself.

"All secretaries are fools," says Usk, impartially.

"Even secretaries of state," says Mr. Wootton, who has the entire of the boudoir, and saunters in at that moment. "I have some news this morning," he adds. "Coltsfoot marries Miss Hoard."

"Never!" exclaims Dorothy Usk.

"Perfectly true," says Mr. Wootton. "Both of them staying at Dunrobin, and engagement publicly announced."

Lord Coltsfoot is heir to a dukedom; Miss Hoard is the result in bullion of iron-works.

"Never!" reiterates Lady Usk.

"It is impossible that he can do such a horrible thing! Why, she quote them properly."

"The age that she looks! That's so very variable. She's 20 when she enters a ball-room at midnight; she's 50 when she comes out at sunrise; she's 16 when she goes to meet anybody at Hurlingham; she's 60 when she scolds her maid and has a scene with her husband."

Lady Usk interrupts him, with vivacity:

"And he! Pray, isn't he five and twenty when he's in Paris, and five and ninety when he's grumbling at home?"

"Because he's bored at home," youth is, after all, only good spirits. If you laugh you are young, but your wife don't make you laugh; you pay her bills and go with her to a state ball, and sit opposite to her at dinner, and when you catch a cold she is always there to say, 'My dear, didn't I tell you so?' but I defy any man living to recall any hour of his existence in which his wife ever made him laugh!"

And yet you wanted me to ask married people together."

Because I wanted it all to be highly proper and deadly dull. Surrender has got a sort of reputation of being a kind of Orleans club."

And yet you complain of being bored in it."

"One is always bored in one's own house! One can never take into dinner the person one likes."

"You make up to yourself for the deprivation after dinner."

"My lady's very ruffled to-day," says Usk to Mr. Wootton; "I don't know which of her doves has turned out a fighting cock."

"That reminds me," observes Mr. Wootton. "I wanted to ask you did you know that Gervase, when he was Lord Baird, was very much amix with Mme. Sabaroff? I remember hearing long ago from Russians—"

Lady Usk interrupts the great man, angrily.

"Very much amix? What barbarous polychlor language for a great critic like you! Must you have the assistance of bad grammar in two tongues to take away my friend's reputation?"

Lord Usk chuckles.

"Reputations aren't taken away so easily; they're very hardy plants now-a-days, and will stand a good deal of bad weather."

Mr. Wootton is shocked.

"Oh, dearest Lady Usk! Reputation! You couldn't think I meant to imply of any guest of yours—only, you know, he was secretary in Peter-burg when he was Lord Baird, and so—and so—"

"Well! It doesn't follow that he is the lover of every woman in Peterburg."

Mr. Wootton is infinitely distressed.

"Oh, indeed! I didn't mean anything of that sort."

"You did mean everything of that sort," murmurs his hostess.

But you see he admired her very much, was constantly with her, and yesterday I saw they don't speak to each other, so I was curious to know what could be the reason."

"I believe she didn't recognize him."

Mr. Wootton smiles.

"Oh, ladies have such prodigious powers of oblivion—and remembrance!"

"Yes," observes Usk, with complacency, "the storms of memory sometimes sink into them as if they were sponges, and sometimes glide off them as if they were ducks."

...ure. Here is the story Mr. Vanhooser tells, and all his neighbors know every word of it is true:

"I had pains in my back and across the loins. My stomach would swell. I was constipated and I had sharp cutting pains in my bladder, which made me sure that I was suffering from the terrible Gravel. The doctor attended me, but I kept getting worse every day."

"Others had told me of the great good Dodd's Kidney Pills had done them and I determined to try them. Six boxes made a new man of me."

Gravel, Dropsy and Diabetes are all other Kidney Diseases or are caused by diseased Kidneys. The easy and natural way to cure them is to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. They never fail to cure any form of Kidney Disease.

LITTLE HELPS.

To Save Time.—It is an excellent idea when a housekeeper is not blessed with stationary tubs in her laundry to try purchasing a two-inch garden hose and attach it to the faucet. In this way she can let the water run in the tubs and boiler without lifting a drop of water, which gives the laundress extra time which otherwise is wasted.

Dust Mop.—Take old stockings and socks, black or colored, cut them lengthwise into inch strips and put them into your mopstick. Dampen with kerosene and let hang in the open air for a day, when your mop will be ready for use. Shake well each time you use it and occasionally add a little more oil, always letting it air thoroughly.

Summer Parasols.—Now is the time when you are putting away your summer parasols. Make a bag of unbleached muslin, put a drawstring at the top and then hang from hook in closet until spring.

It is not generally known that cold milk given to children causes much trouble during the summer months, as the cold milk entering the stomach is not acted upon by the rennet quickly enough to insure good digestion. For this reason the best effect is obtained in its being lukewarm. Boiling water added to the milk breaks the curd and aids digestion.

Flowers and Frost.—Frosts are occurring in many sections of the Canning Hint.—The economical housekeeper who feels that she cannot buy new Mason jar covers every time she does any canning will find it a great help to boil her covers with baking soda, allowing a tablespoonful to a quart of cold water, let come to a boil, boil about ten minutes, then scour with sapollo. They will do just as well as new ones, providing you get your jars airtight.

GIVE BABY A CHANCE.

Don't dose the baby with soothing mixtures and narcotics—they were never known to help any baby. You might just as well dose the grown up man or woman with opium or cocaine—the result would be the same—a permanent injury to mind and body. When baby is ill give him a medicine that will cure—a medicine free from injurious drugs. Such a medicine is Baby's Own Tablets. They are baby's greatest friend. They never do harm—always good. Concerning them Mrs. Richard Mulloy, Lavigan, Sask., writes: "Baby's Own Tablets should be in every home where there are small children. We gave them to our baby when he was teething and they kept him good natured and healthy." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25c. a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The young man considered for a moment. Then he said:

"I think, sir, I should leave that entirely to Mrs. Bullion."

"Um! And what is the amount of your income?"

"Oh, that, sir," answered the pleasant young fellow, "I—I leave that entirely to you, Mr. Bullion!"

WHEN HEALTH IS RUN DOWN

A Tonic Such as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is Promptly Needed.

When the health is run down from any cause whatever, a tonic is needed. A feeling of weakness, poor appetite, loss of breath after slight exertion, indicates that a complete breakdown is near. Sometimes these troubles are due to overwork or worry, or again they may be due to the after effects of fever or some wasting illness. But what ever the cause the trouble should not be neglected, and for the purpose of gaining new health and new strength there is absolutely no better medicine than Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which fill the veins with new, rich blood, which tones and strengthens every nerve and every organ in the body. Mrs. Rose A. Smith, Roblin, Man., says: "Some years ago I had a severe attack of typhoid fever. When I recovered sufficiently to be able to get about I found that I was not able to gather up my strength. I tried tonic wines and other medicines, but without avail. For months I could hardly go up stairs, and if I took a walk I was always obliged to take a friend with me to help me home again. A doctor had again been called in, but he said I would grow out of it in time and gave me more medicine, but instead of gaining I kept getting worse, and was at last obliged to take to my bed. One day while lying reading I chanced to come across a cure made by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and this decided me to try them. Before I had taken the pills long I began to feel a decided improvement and my friends also said I was beginning to look like my old self again. From this on the improvement was steady, but I continued to take the Pills for a couple of months, when I felt that the cure was complete. Several years have passed since then and as I have remained in the best of health I am warranted in saying that the cure is permanent, and I freely give this statement for the benefit it may bring to others."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or may be had by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

BREADS.

Nut Bread.—Two cups of graham flour, two cups of white flour, one cup of sugar, one cup of chopped English walnuts, one egg, one teaspoon of salt, four heaping teaspoons of baking powder, two cups of sweet milk. Let rise for twenty minutes and bake in a slow oven fifty minutes.

Date Bread.—Two cups of butter, milk, three and one-quarter cups graham flour, one-half cup of cornmeal, two eggs, one teaspoon of granulated sugar, one cup of molasses, one teaspoon of soda, a little salt, one pound of chopped dates sprinkled with the three-quarters cup of graham flour, one-quarter cup of chopped walnuts. This makes two loaves. Have oven quite hot at first, then decrease the heat. It improves the baking to set the bread in hot water for the first one-half hour. Put hot water in a drip-

GRAPE WINE.

Grape Wine.—Remove grapes from stems and put into a jar, sprinkling sugar through them, allowing one pint of sugar to each basket of Concord grapes; let this stand until the pulp becomes absorbed, stirring it occasionally. Then strain and add one quart of water for every two quarts of grape juice, add sugar to taste, one pint of sugar to each basket of grapes is sufficient unless wanted very sweet. Put into a large jar or keg, filling it full that the impurities will work over and run off. Keep in a warm place until it stops working, then strain and bottle and put in a cool place. Very nice and keeps good for years.

Sweet Grape Wine.—Take ripe grapes, wash, dry and carefully pick from the stems. Place a layer of grapes, then a layer of sugar, and so on until the jar is full. Then seal perfectly airtight and set away in a cool place. From time to time turn the jar upside down, as this mixes the sugar and the juice, which gradually oozes from the fruit. In a surprisingly short time one has a jar of rich, sweet wine and one that is a delightful beverage, and one that is excellent for convalescents.

German Recipe.—The second is a German recipe. Wash and stem perfectly sound grapes. Mash them and put on to cook. Add a little water. The less water, the richer the juice will be. Cook until quite soft and strain through a muslin cloth or jelly bag. Put juice again on the fire, adding sugar to taste. Some grapes require more sugar than others. Boil a few minutes, skimming when necessary. While hot, pour into bottles or jars, and seal at once. This will keep all winter without spoiling.

OYSTERS ARE LAZY.

They Spend Practically the Whole of Their Lives in Beds.

Just like confirmed invalids, oysters spend their lives in beds. The principal parts of an oyster are salt water and a handsome stomach.

Every oyster has a mother-of-pearl lined overcoat with the moss on the outside. But a Waldorf-Astoria oyster gathers no moss.

Oysters, as a rule, keep their mouths shut, but when they have been in society too long they begin to gape. They are fond of playing games, one of their favorites being ring-around-a-rosy. In this game they join shells in a circle on a plate. They live in the ocean in summer and during the winter months frequent the principal hotels and restaurants, where they have reserved seats on cakes of ice specially prepared for them. They are rarely met with at huskings or church fairs.

An oyster is a conchologist by nature, a bivalve by profession and an appetizer because he cannot help himself. There are girl oysters as well as men oysters; but, so far as is known, one is not superior to the other.

Oysters vary in size according to their circumstances and their bringing up. Some are harder to swallow than others. There is no particular rule about this. But if at first you don't succeed, try, try again.

In June the oysters ought to be as rare as the days.—Thomas L. Masson in Judge's Library.

WHY SUFFER FROM PILES?

Zam-Buk Gives Certain Ease.

Friction on veins (the hemorrhoid veins) that are swollen, inflamed and gorged with blood, is what causes the terrible pain and stinging and smarting of piles. Zam-Buk applied at night will be found to give ease before morning. Mr. Thomas Pearson, of Prince Albert, Sask., writes: "Last summer I suffered greatly from piles. I started to use Zam-Buk and found it gave me relief, so I continued it and after using three or four boxes I was completely cured."

Magistrate Sanford, of Weston, King's Co., N.S., says: "I suffered long from itching piles, but Zam-Buk has now cured me."

Mr. William Kenly, of Upper Nine Mile River, Hants Co., N.S., says: "I suffered terribly from piles, the pain at times being almost unbearable. I was tired of trying various remedies, when I heard of Zam-Buk, and thought as a last resource I would give this balm a trial. After a very short trial Zam-Buk effected what several other ointments and medicines had failed to do—a complete cure."

Zam-Buk is also a sure cure for skin injuries and diseases, eczemas, ulcers, varicose veins, cuts, burns, bruises, chaps, cold sores, etc. 50c. box all druggists and stores, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse harmful imitations.

BRANDON ASYLUM BURNED

The Six Hundred Inmates Were Saved, But Some Hurt

A despatch from Brandon, Manitoba, says: The Asylum for the Insane, which housed over six hundred patients, was completely destroyed by fire, which was discovered at 5.30 on Friday afternoon. So far as could be learned at a late hour on Friday night not a life was lost. The heroic work of the guards and other members of the staff having resulted in the saving of every one of the unfortunate inmates. Screaming and shouting, the hundreds of insane were safely herded out of the doomed building just in time to keep them from becoming a prey to the flames, but the real task of the guards and others ensued when the maddened unfortunates found themselves in the open and started a stampede in every direction. Most of them were soon quieted down, and stood shivering in the piercing cold wind until rounded up and driven into the sheds and stables awaiting their removal to better quarters. Hundreds of citizens who soon arrived on the scene in every available automobile and vehicle in Brandon, assisted in the unpleasant task of chasing the patients and bringing them back. The great majority of the unfortunates are safely housed in the Winter Fair building and the Armory, but a number are still missing, and guards and police are scouring the prairie in every direction.

Just how the fire started is still a matter of conjecture, but there are apparently well-authenticated rumors showing that one of the patients secured a supply of matches and set fire to the mail building, the blaze gaining considerable headway before being discovered. The alarm was sent into the Brandon fire department at 5.20, and the whole brigade turned out to the asylum, which is on a hill a mile and a half away from the centre of the city.

When the fire was first noticed a terrible panic ensued among the patients, and the guards had their hands full trying to control the unfortunates. Nothing was done at first to combat the fire, as all realized the terrible necessity of getting the patients out of harm's way.

The scenes in all parts of the building could not have been duplicated outside a mad house, and the remarkable escape of all in the building is ascribed to the splendid work of the guards and the staff, and the heroic work of several of the patients, who seemed to realize the danger and remained cool. Others too dense to realize their danger acted so calmly as to allay the growing panic. A number of patients were injured in their hurried flight from the burning buildings, but, so far as can be learned, none seriously.

VICTIM OF AN ASSAULT

Farmer Near Fort William Found Lying in Pool of Blood

A despatch from Fort William says: The victim of two murderous assaults at the hands of a couple of supposedly unknown men within ten days, R. J. Musgrave, a prominent farmer of O'Connor Township, fourteen miles northwest of here, is in a critical condition at his home. Musgrave who lives alone, is well-to-do. When two neighbors who had been engaged to harvest a crop of potatoes for him called at his home on Thursday morning they were compelled to break in the door and found Musgrave lying on the floor in a pool of blood. Regaining consciousness for a few minutes about noon, Musgrave told of being struck down by a club while in the yard. Two men attacked him ten days ago, but help arrived before he was seriously injured. Robbery was not the object of his assailant, as a considerable sum of money in the victim's pockets was untouched. He had no enemies so far as is known. The settlement is considerably worked up, as Musgrave enjoyed an excellent reputation.

FIGHT WITH POACHERS.

Provincial Constable Acton Has a Stiff Battle.

A despatch from Sarnia says: The most serious trouble which has yet arisen out of the violations of game laws by Americans along the St. Clair River occurred opposite Dorunna at daylight on Saturday morning, when Provincial Constable Thomas Acton of Sarnia and County Constables Thomas Davidson and Henry Smith of Corunna made two arrests. The men had two magazine guns and several ducks. One

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" BRINGS RELIEF

MRS. FRANK EATON

Frankville, Ont., Sept. 27, 1909. "I suffered for years from headaches and pain in the back, and I consulted doctors and took every remedy obtainable without any relief. Then I began taking 'Fruit-a-tives', the famous fruit juice tablets, and this was the only medicine that ever did me any real good. I took several boxes altogether, and now I am entirely well of all my dreadful headaches and backaches". (Signed) MRS. FRANK EATON. 50c a box, 5 for $2.50 or trial box, 25c. ### BLAZE AT GANANOQUE.

The Ontario Wheel Company Suffer a Heavy Loss.

A despatch from Gananoque says: At 6 o'clock on Thursday morning fire broke out in the drying kiln of the Ontario Wheel Company's works. The loss is estimated at from $150,000 to $175,000. The insurance is $125,000. The kiln, which is situated at the back of the premises, contained very inflammable material, and was soon a raging furnace, despite the hard work of the firemen. The main building, which is beside the kiln, soon caught fire, and it was then that the local brigade called on Kingston for assistance. The Kingston brigade arrived about 9.30 and did much in checking the flames, although the fire was practically under control. The main building, along with its machinery and goods under construction, is a smouldering mass, and all that remains of the wheel company's fine buildings is the two warehouses and the boiler-room. The company employed about one hundred men, all of whom will be thrown out of work, for some time at least.

SUPERIORITY OF CANADIAN BANKS.

The Canadian Banking system is so totally different from those of the older countries of Europe that new comers to this country are often slow to realize the advantages of the facilities it offers in doing business.

The Traders Bank of Canada have recently undertaken an Educational campaign for the purpose of extending to new Canadian citizens and those who have come over from Europe the advantages that the Bank should be to them and extreme simplicity in their methods of doing business.

The Traders Bank point out that any man that goes into business should have a checking-account in their Bank. All money that is received is deposited and paid out by cheque. In this way the Bank really keeps track of a man's financial matters for him, and with their flame laws by Americans along the It. Clair River occurred opposite Dorunna at daylight on Saturday morning, when Provincial Constable Thomas Acton of Sarnia and County Constables Thomas Davidson and Henry Smith of Corunna made two arrests. The men had two magazine guns and several ducks. One of them pointed a gun at the constable, but dropped it when ordered. Acton took the two prisoners in their own boat, and Davidson and Smith were to follow. The boats became separated in the current, and one of the prisoners took Acton over the head with an oar from behind, and the boat was headed for the American shore. Acton was unable to reach for his revolver, but attacked his assailant with his fists, and in the struggle both men fell into the water, and the third man clung to the overturned boat, crying for help. The men floated quite a distance before Davidson's boat arrived, and the American was completely exhausted. Acton furnished the prisoners with clothing at Corunna and brought them to Sarnia. They gave their names as William Jones and Edward Suisse, residents of St. Clair, Mich.

TORONTO HUNT CLUB BURNED

Five Structure Falls Prey to Flames on Sunday Morning.

A despatch from Toronto says: The Toronto Hunt, the most active sporting organization in Canada, and a great centre in the social life of Toronto, had its fine clubhouse in the Kingston-road in Scarborough, six miles east of the city hall, totally destroyed by fire Sunday morning about 7 o'clock, when the head waiter discovered the building in a blaze. Nothing could be done to save it, and soon only the walls, or part of them, was standing. The loss of building, contents and trophies, the latter alone valued at $10,000, will foot up to between $20,000 and $50,000, said to be largely, if not altogether, insured. A spark from a fireplace is said to have started the trouble.

TAKING GUN FROM BOAT.

A Boy Named Joseph Carter Instantly Killed.

A despatch from Cornwall says: A sad fatality occurred about three miles east of Lancaster on Friday, when Joseph Carter, the fifteen-year-old son of Mr. Thomas Carter, was almost instantly killed by the accidental discharge of a loaded, unloaded gun which he had seized by the muzzle to remove from the boat in which he had been hunting ducks. He had just reached shore, and was removing the gun from the boat when the trigger struck, sending the contents of both barrels at a point blank range into young Carter's body. He fell almost at the feet of his father, and expired in a few minutes.

connections at the east end for connection with the Place Viger new passenger and freight terminals, and new freight sheds and warehouses. This announcement was made officially on Wednesday. It was also officially announced that the Canadian Pacific Railway Company has decided to build four new steamers for a fast direct steamship service between Nova Scotia ports and Boston and New York. These vessels will be larger, faster and stronger than any at present engaged in the North Atlantic coast steamship traffic. This is one of the important developments that will follow the absorption of the Dominion Atlantic into the system in the spring. The new vessels will be the type of ocean liners, about 450 feet in length, with a carrying capacity of 5,000 tons, and able to make over twenty knots.

COLLISION ON WABASH.

George Smith, Engineer, Instantly Killed.

A despatch from St. Thomas says: A fatal collision occurred on the Wabash Railroad at Corinth Station on Friday night, resulting in the instant death of Engineer George Smith, of St. Thomas. The fireman escaped by jumping. Several cars were derailed and piled up, and traffic was blocked some hours. An open switch is given as the cause of the tragedy. Smith, who was one of the oldest railway men in the city, was in his 66th year. He leaves a widow and grown-up family.

PORT HURON'S NEW CHARTER

The City Adopts Commission Form of Government.

A despatch from Port Huron, Mich., says: The voters of Port Huron on Saturday adopted the new charter provided for in the home rule bill, thereby putting their stamp of approval on the commission form of government. The new form of government will go into effect January 1. Port Huron is the first Michigan city of size to take this step.

WINNIPEG'S POPULATION.

A Great Guessing Contest is Now in Progress.

A despatch from Winnipeg says: Estimating the population of Winnipeg is once more the popular game, and guesses run all the way from 175,000 to the even 200,000. Canvassers working for the Henderson Directory are credited with stating that ten thousand new names will be added to the city directory this year, which would bring the population to 195,000. Civic officials who are closely in touch with such matters are confident that the official figures will be over 175,000.

LIVE STOCK MARKETS.

Montreal, Nov. 8.—There were no prime beefs on the market, and a few of the best animals sold at about 5½¢ per lb. Common stock from 3 to 4½¢ per lb. Milch cows from $20 to $60 each; springers from $25 to $50 each. Grass-fed calves at from 3 to 4½¢ per lb.; good veals at 5 to 7¢ per lb. Sheep about 4¢ per lb.; lambs, 6¢ per lb. Hogs, good lots sold at about 8¢ and over per lb.

Toronto, Nov. 8.—Butcher cattle, $5.80 a cwt., while the lowest was $4.70. Butcher cows ranged from $2.35 to $5, bulls from $3.25 to $4.65, and steers weighing 700 to 1,100 pounds, $4.40 to $5.15. Milkers and springers seem to be the strongest proposition on the market. Several lots have sold recently around $75. Veal calves are quoted easier at $3 to $7 a cwt. Lambs were about 10¢ a cwt. higher; sheep ewes, $4.50 to $4.85, and bucks and culls, $3 to $3.50. Hog prices seem to be hanging in the balance at $6.90 f.o.b. and $7.25 fed and watered at the market.

BUILDING OF SCAFFOLD.

Jail Inmates Prepare Structure for Execution of Candy.

A despatch from Montreal says: On instructions from Ottawa, Governor Vallee, of the Montreal Jail, set a gang of prisoners at work on Wednesday on the erection of a scaffold for the execution of Timothy Candy, condemned to be hung on Nov. 18. Candy murdered two policemen who had taken him in charge on suspicion of theft.

of doing business. The Traders Bank point out that any man that goes into business should have a checking account in their Bank. All money that is received is deposited and paid out by cheque. In this way the Bank really keeps track of a man's financial matters for him, and with their Savings Department for accumulated sums of money where they pay a handsome interest on idle funds, and their facilities in the way of remitting money by Bank Drafts, Money Orders, and the issuing of Travellers' Cheques for people returning home, are advantages that every man should know a lot about. Although not the largest Bank in Canada the Traders Bank has Assets of over forty-five millions, and over one hundred Branches in Canada. Their financial strength and reliability is beyond any question.

FORGAVE HIS SLAYER.

James Fox Tries to Save Johnson From Gallows.

A despatch from Fort William says: Partly recovered from an insane fit during which he mortally wounded James Fox on Sunday, Dave Johnson is now in the cells awaiting trial, being brought in by Constable Stringer on Tuesday night. The charge is softened somewhat by the heroic action of his victim, who, on his death-bed, made a statement vindicating Johnson, on the ground that he was not mentally responsible for his actions. That the dead cook, who breathed his last on Tuesday afternoon in McKellar Hospital, is entitled to the highest human respect is evident from the fact that he died trying to save a fellow-workman from possible suicide. When informed that his hours were numbered he made an attempt to have the other cook released from the murder indictment by the statement that the man did not know what he was doing.

BRITISH CABINET SHUFFLE.

Lewis Harcourt Becomes Secretary of State for Colonies.

A despatch from London says: The retirement of Viscount Morley from the office of Secretary of State for India was announced officially on Thursday evening. At the same time the following appointments approved by King George, were made known: Viscount Morley to be Lord President of the Council; the Earl of Beauchamp; the Earl of Crewe, Secretary of State for India; Lewis Harcourt, Secretary of State for the Colonies; the Earl of Crewe; the Earl of Beauchamp, First Commissioner of Works, vice Lewis Harcourt.

OPIMUM AND BOGUS BILLS.

Mulattoes Captured at London With Outfit in Their Possession.

A despatch from London, Ont., says: A clever capture was effected on Tuesday night, when Detective Nickle arrested Walter Smith and Minnie Smith, two Buffalo mulattoes. A complete opium outfit, several pounds of the narcotic, and rolls of counterfeit bills were found in their possession. It is believed that they planned to establish an opium joint in London.

GRAIN YIELD IN RUSSIA.

Winter Wheat Cron 50,000,000 Bushels Below Estimate.

A despatch from Ottawa says: The Dominion Department of Agriculture on Friday morning received a cable from the headquarters of the International Agricultural Institute at Rome containing the latest figures as to crop yields in various parts of the world. The cable stated that the official revised estimate of the winter wheat yields for the Russian Empire was 249,000,000 bushels, compared with the preliminary estimate of 299,000,000 bushels last month. The estimate of Russia's yield of winter rye is now 865,000,000 bushels, compared with the preliminary estimate of 943,000,000 bushels. The area devoted to wheat-growing for 1910-11 will be 15,151,000 acres, as compared with 14,422,000 acres last year.

STORMS IN FRANCE.

Floods are Again Feared on the River Seine.

A despatch from Paris says: Very severe storms are raging over almost the whole of France. The Seine has risen rapidly, and a repetition of the floods of a few months ago is feared. The signaling system on the Eiffel Tower has been destroyed. The Moselle is 2.8 meters above its normal level. In Le Mans the heavy rain and strong wind have caused much damage. The Rhone has flooded some parts of the country along its banks. In Limoges, Valenciennes and Yvetot it is still raining furiously. At Havre the storm has caused

GIVES BLOOD TO BROTHER

Heroic Action of a Sutton Boy Saves the Life of Relative

A despatch from Toronto says: By means of the surgical operation known as "transfusion of blood" the life of Norman Allen of Sutton, Ont., was saved at the General Hospital on Wednesday afternoon. Young Allen, who had the main artery in his leg severed some days ago as the result of an accident with a chisel, lost so much blood that his system became impoverished and the wound would not heal, even under the care of the doctors at the hospital.

The amputation of the injured leg was an impossibility owing to the devitalized state of the young man's body, and it seemed as if his life must gradually ebb away in spite of medical preventives. It was finally decided as a last resource to restore life to the dying man by transfusing enough healthy blood to his body to help him fight his way back to strength.

Allen's younger brother decided to take the great risks of blood-poisoning and give of his life's supply to help restore his brother to health. Accordingly a quart of blood was allowed to flow from the brachial artery in the arm of the younger to the same artery in the arm of the older brother. The result was marvellous. Both boys survived the operation and Norman Allen on Wednesday night was reported by Dr. J. N. E. Brown at the General Hospital to be doing splendidly. He will again have the use of his leg, which it was thought would have to be amputated. It was the first time that such an operation was performed in Toronto.

POISON IN THE WINE.

One Man Dead, Two Ill, and the Fourth Missing.

A despatch from Vancouver, B. C., says: As a result of drinking a bottle of poisoned wine on Saturday evening, Louis Tankeray, a Frenchman, is dead, two others, Emil Delawdier and Henri Cochette, are seriously ill in the hospital, while the police are searching for a fourth, Jaan Demar. All four, apparently friends, were drinking together in the lower flat of a house at 1,482 Eighth avenue west, where they seem to have lived. About nine o'clock the four entered a Broadway pharmacy and in broken English explained they had been poisoned. The chemist hastened to prepare an emetic. In his absence Tankeray was seized with convulsions, fell to the floor and expired. Jaan Demar ran out, and has not been seen since. The chemist telephoned the police and an ambulance was sent. Delawdier and Cochette were hurried to the hospital, where they lie in a serious condition.

years. Government tugs endeavored to keep the channel open from Selkirk to the lake on Saturday, but had to give up the task. None of the boats caught in the ice have any store of food, and the crews will have to come over the ice to avoid starving.

TOUGH ON THE DOG.

An example of household economy in the present era of high prices, the following bit should serve as a model to all wives tending to be extravagant. Provided the family got enough to eat at each meal, there should have been no complaint from any one, with the possible exception of the butcher and the dog.

"Mary."
"Ma'am?"
"What about that ham bone I brought home the other day. Can't you cut a few scraps of meat from it for dinner this evening?"
"I cut off all the meat I could night before last for dinner."
"Well, then, you might do it this evening. We'll have soup."
"Yes, ma'am. And what do you want me to do with it then?"
"Tomorrow morning you might see if you can't get enough meat out of it to grease the gutted for mincepies."

Very Sudden Death.

On Thursday morning death came very suddenly to Mr. Jas. Taylor, one of Napanee's oldest and most widely known residents. Mr. Taylor has been in poor health for some time but not seriously ill, and was up and about as usual on Thursday morning. When returning from feeding his poultry he was taken with heart failure and expired almost immediately. For a long number of years Mr. Taylor kept a shoe shop in Napanee, retiring a few years ago on account of failing health. Deceased was sixty-seven years of age and leaves besides his widow four sons, Messrs. Garratt and Melville Taylor, Napanee; Mr. W. J. Taylor, Woodstock, and Mr. Don Taylor, Toronto; and one daughter, Mrs. Dr. Rutan, Woodstock.

Picton Oddfellows Visit Napanee.

On Thursday evening last the third degree team of Quinte Lodge I.O.O.F., Picton, paid a fraternal visit to Napanee Lodge No. 86. The team were accompanied by a number of the Picton fraternity and were greeted by a large turn-out of the members of Napanee and Argyll Lodges. The Picton degree team conferred the Third Degree on two candidates in a very able manner and were warmly congratulated on the general excellence of their work. After the degree was conferred lunch was served in the assembly hall of Napanee Lodge, by Bro. A. Caton, who received many compliments on the excellence of the spread provided. A couple of hours were profitably spent in listening to short speeches by the visitors and Napanee brethren, and the meeting closed at a reasonable hour. Rev. F. T. Dibb made a very proficient chairman of the proceedings. The Picton brethren left for home on the Reindeer at the close of the evening's proceedings.

A Sudden Death.

On Saturday last a very sudden death occurred under somewhat peculiar circumstances. Mr. Michael Peterson, of Petrolia, was on his way from Petrolia to Napanee to visit his brother, Mr. S. L. Peterson, Pines. He was expected to arrive in Napanee on the noon train on Saturday, but took an earlier train and arrived on the midnight. After leaving Toronto he was taken seriously ill and put off at Napanee in an unconscious condition, and lay in the ladies' waiting room at the station from 2.30 until 8 o'clock a.m., when he was found by Mr. Laidley, agent of the G. T. R., at Napanee, who immediately summoned a doctor and notified his brothers of his condition. Mr. Peterson was removed from the station to the undertaking rooms of Messrs. Ming and Hambly, where he was made comfortable and everything possible done for him. He never regained consciousness and died about one o'clock Sunday morning. Mr. Peterson's daughter stated that her father had $30 in his pocket on leaving Petrolia, but $1.50 was found on him, and the balance was unaccounted for. The remains were sent to Petrolia on Sunday evening. The cause of his death was Bright's disease.

THE ANNUAL MEETING.
The annual meeting of the Horticultural Society was held in the Public Library board room, on Friday evening last.

The reports of the President and Secretary show that the society is doing an excellent work. That the Harvey Warner park is not a bare lawn is due to this organization, which has furnished free every tree, shrub and plant that now embellish this handsome square. Every church and public building in the town has been the recipient of gifts. Some of them have cared for them as they should, notably, Trinity Church and the Post Office. It is almost pathetic to contemplate the taste of the county councillors who were of opinion that the Boston Ivy about the Court House should be removed. Of all buildings in Napanee that are in need of vines, the Court House should head the list and no wiser expenditure could be made than a liberal grant towards setting out dozens of such vines to beautify and protect its bare walls. The town authorities have done practically nothing to protect the vines planted by the society, to hide the hideous outlines of the Town Hall.

Every member of the society has received a bountiful supply of bulbs and seeds, at least double the value of membership, yet it is surprising how few are willing to assist in the noble work that is being carried on. They receive those contributions, and like to see the flowers in bloom and recognize the great benefits that accrue to the town for such a society, yet so few will lend a helping hand.

Better results are looked for from new Board of Directors, which is as follows: Mrs. Herbert Daly, Mrs. Lyons, Mrs. J. L. Boyes, Mrs. H. T. Forward, Mrs. Frank Carson, Miss Leila Wright, Mr. U. M. Wilson, Mr. W. A. Rose, Mr. C. Warner.

The President and Vice Presidents were re-elected, being: W. S. Herrington, K. C., President; Mrs. J. W. Robinson, 1st Vice President; Mrs. R. G. H. Travers, 2nd Vice President.

Each subscriber for the following year will be presented with a year's subscription to the Canadian Horticulturist, the regular subscription of which is $1.00. This neat publication contains in each number a great many valuable hints to the amateur gardener and horticulturist. Now is the time for members to hand in their subscriptions, and assist in making Napanee the most beautiful town in Ontario.

CRIPPEN'S EXECUTION WILL NOT BE TILL NOV. 23rd.

London, Nov. 7.—The execution of Dr. Crippen is postponed until Nov. 23rd. This announcement was made because of sensational cablegram which came from the United States stating the belief that Belle Elmore Crippen still lives and that she has been recently seen either in or near Chicago. Barristers Newton and Alfred Tobin, who had apparently abandoned hope for Crippen, when the appeal was dismissed, Saturday, renewed their effort, to-day, with redoubled vigor. They held a conference with the judges-in-chambers. Time will be given for full investigation of all reports that Belle Elmore Crippen is still alive.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 7.—Francis Tracy Tobin a prominent attorney, of this city left for Washington, D. C., at midnight, last to demand that the state department intervene and save Dr. Harvey Hawley Crippen from death on the gallows, Tuesday morning, on the ground that Mrs. Belle Elmore Crippen is still living. Mr. Tobin will request that the secretary of state cable at once to the American ambassador, asking that the letter petition the home secretary of Great British to order a stay of execution until Mrs. Crippen can be produced in the flesh. Before leaving he said: "Belle Elmore still lives. When she is found it will be in the vicinity of Chicago, where she is in hiding. I have letters in my possession from people who know her and have seen her since she is said to have been murdered by her husband and her body buried in his London home."

New York, Nov. 7.—To back his belief that Belle Elmore, the wife of Dr. Harvey Hawley Crippen still lives, Dr. J. M. Munyon, Philadelphia, has offered a reward of $50,000 to anyone who will produce her. "I will even pay it to the woman herself," he said, "if she will come forward in time to save her husband."

"I believe," continued Dr. Munyon, who formerly employed Crippen, "that either the woman is hiding to carry out one of the most consummate revenges in the annals of jealousy of else that she has carried an advertising game too far. I have received letters from persons who know Mrs. Crippen, telling me that they have seen her alive in this country within the last few weeks. I never could be persuaded that Crippen killed his wife. He was too gentle a man."

A Credit To Canada.

Canada can boast of many great enterprises but the one in particular that all Canada is proud of is that great weekly printed in Montreal, The Family Herald and Weekly Star. With its 28 and 32 pages every week of the best reading matter, it certainly is a big dollar's worth, and then again every subscriber for 1911 has an opportunity to win a Free Trip to the Old Country next June. Anyone who is not already a reader of that great weekly should lose no time in sending in an order. The price is only one dollar.

Children's Aid Society.

A very interesting meeting was held in the Town Hall, on Wednesday evening, when Mr. J. J. Kelso, Provincial Superintendent of neglected children, assisted by Mr. Scantlebury, President of Belleville, C. A. S., and Mr. Wrightmeyer, their agent, told of the good work that was being done, of their trials, and their encouragements. Mr. F. Burrows, President of the Nananee C. A. S., was in the chair. Mr. Wrightmeyer delighted the audience with a well rendered solo, after which Mr. Kelso, with the aid of limelight views, gave a vivid account of cases that required treatment, contrasting the appearance of the children before and after being cared for by the Children's Aid. It is appalling to think, that, in this land of plenty, people are living in such poverty and degradation. Mrs. VanLoven and Mr. Wrightmeyer sang a duet very acceptably, and were accompanied on the piano by Mrs. F. Cairns-Smith. Mr. Scantlebury gave an interesting account of how he became interested in the work and the delight he took in it, closing with a recitation of Mrs. Browning's pathetic poem "The Cry of the Children." Mr. Wrightmeyer encouraged the local society by giving the results of His work, which he felt, amply repaid him for all his trouble. The Local Children's Aid Society, has done good work, under most trying circumstances. They are at present much in need of funds having had some difficult cases to deal with during the past few months. They feel confident however that the citizens of Nananee will come to their assistance very generously now that the need is known.

I. O. D. O. E.

On Tuesday evening, November 8th, a most interesting meeting was held in the Historical Hall for the purpose of organizing in Nananee a chapter of the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire. Mayor Simpson occupied the chair and introduced Miss Merritt, of St. Catharines, the Honorary Organizing Secretary of the Order. Miss Merritt then explained the aims of the order, the work that has been done in the Chapters and the widespread influence of the work. Some of the aims of the order are:

"To stimulate and give expression to the sentiment of patriotism which binds the women and children of the Empire around the throne and person of their gracious and beloved sovereign."

"To supply and foster a bond of union amongst the Daughters and Children of the Empire."

"To promote in the Motherland and in the Colonies the study of the History of the Empire and of current Imperial questions, to celebrate patriotic anniversaries, to cherish the memories of brave deeds, and the last resting place of our heroes and heroines, especially such as are in distant and solitary places, to erect memorial stones on spots that have become sacred to the nation, either through great struggles for freedom, battles against ignorance, or events of heroic and patriotic self sacrifice."

The following are only a few of the very many different kinds of work undertaken by the various chapters:

"The denoting annually of prizes for best essays on "The Empire," offered to public school children."

"The conducting of a correspondence between children in Canada and those in the British possessions whereby now over 1500 Canadian children are exchanging letters with children in other colonies, descriptions with views of their respective countries, pursuits, manufacturers, natural products, photographs, etc. etc."

"The care of the graves of Canadian soldiers in South Africa."

Great assistance has been given to hospitals in Brockville, Vancouver, Moose Jaw, Goderich, Weston, Hamilton and Gravenhurst.

The support of district nurses.

The presentation of an ambulance to the town.

Instructive lectures on Imperial matters frequently given by important men. Those Chapters who held meetings for readings only are always very numerous and those readings are always of an Imperial or historical nature.

There are chapters of the Order in every province of the Dominion, in Newfoundland, in the United States, in Bahamas and in India. It is allied with other leagues with kindred aims in England and South Africa.

A large number of ladies joined the Order at the close of the lecture. It is hoped that very many more will become members and take part in this most interesting and useful work.

It was decided that the Nananee Chapter should be known as the United Empire Loyalist Chapter, with the motto "Neither fear nor despise."

The following officers were elected:

Regent—Mrs. A. T. Harshaw.
1st Vice Regent—Mrs. J. H. Madden.
2nd Vice Regent—Mrs. Wm. Templeton.

Secretary—Miss Helen Grange.
Treasurer—Miss Edna Richardson.
Standard Bearer—Miss Jessie Crysel.

FOR FLETCHER'S
CASTORIA

Mr. Cade with his new clover dresser, is doing some nice work on this road, having completed jobs for Messrs. H. W. and Levi Sager, Alf Keech and Harry Oliver. It is a fine new outfit and well deserves the patronage of the public.

Several improvements in the building line have been made lately. Mr. Ezra Pringle has made a fine looking house of his brick one by re-shingling, and placing a new portico and new doors, also new windows in the front, which adds much to its appearance.

Visitors from Belleville at Mr. Rube Brown's during Thanksgiving.

A little visitor has come to stay at the home of Mr. Bert Bowen's, near the boundary. Bert is all smiles these days.

Mr. Stuart Bowen, who has been confined to his bed for several weeks, we are glad to say, has so far improved as to be able to be out around doing chores.

Mostly all the farmers on this road have everything in the vegetable line housed for the winter, and are finishing up ploughing.

We understand that Mr. William Joyce has rented the Rathbun gardens alongside the boundary road, (lately occupied by Mr. Parks) and has commenced plowing.

Mr. H. W. Sager intends holding an auction sale of stock, farm implements and household furniture next Tuesday the 15th inst., at his home on this road.

Mr. Harry Hunter has commenced pressing hay on this road this week. The hay crop is reported to be good here, but very light in several other districts, which will undoubtedly raise the price here.

Mr. Rant Thompson has put a new galvanized iron roof on his house, Sand Hill.

Mr. Reed, the new tenant to occupy Mr. M. S. Madole's farm, has been doing his fall plowing.

revenge in the annals of jealousy, or else that she has carried an advertising game too far. I have received letters from persons who know Mrs. Crippen, telling me that they have seen her alive in this country within the last few weeks. I never could be persuaded that Crippen killed his wife. He was too gentle a man."

Cheap Shoes.

OPEN-MINDED DISCUSSION OF PUBLIC QUESTIONS

"A newspaper—not an organ."

The newspaper for the man who courts open-minded discussion on all public questions and who expects support of right—of justice—and of decency in the treatment of public affairs.

A newspaper with definite opinions on all political—social—and moral questions—has the courage of its convictions—whose editorials are fair—broad-minded—honest—and written by some of the cleverest writers in Canadian Journalism to-day—just such a newspaper as an aggressive and intelligent Canadian people will enjoy and read with profit.
